Meningitis scare at HHSS is unfounded

The threat of an outbreak of meningitis at the high school last week turned out to be a false alarm.

According to Dr. Don Mikel, Medical Officer of Health of the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit, on Wednesday a student was reported with symptoms resembling meningitis.

As a precaution, those people who had been in close contact with the student where given drugs to fight the disease, while tests were carried out.

On Friday, Dr. Mikel said the tests had come back negative indicating the student did not have meningitis.

Meningitis causes swelling in the spinal column and brain. A year ago one of the worst outbreaks of the disease in the province was reported in Victoria County.

Developer accused of land flips

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

In a clash over a proposed commercial development on Bobcaygeon Road, Minden's Deputy-Reeve accused a local developer of being a land speculator who flips property instead of following projects through to completion.

Bern Berry made the comments about Brad Bradamore during last Thursday's council meeting while Bradamore was attempting to have a Planning Advisory Council decision overturned.

Berry said Bradamore's development activities have been responsible for the three excavation sites along the east side of Bobcaygeon Road between the Rockcliffe and Home Hardware.

He described the sites as unsightly and unsafe and called them "three scars on the face of Main Street."

Bradamore was the developer who began each of the projects, but sold the first two after getting municipal approval for the projects.

The project Bradamore is currently trying to gain approval for is proposed for the land in front of his home and office on Bobcaygeon Road. He hopes to sever the property into four lots and establish a commercial plaza on three of the lots.

At the January 18 planning committee meeting, members approved one of the proposed severances in order to provide

Snowdon may go unilingual

Snowdon Township may soon declare English as the only working language for the municipality, but it is unlikely the county will follow suit.

Snowdon Reeve George Simmons made a plea to his fellow councillors last Monday, asking them to consider passing a by-law similar to the one adopted by the City of Sault Ste. Marie.

While the idea was welcomed at the township level, Simmons found less support when he polled fellow County Councillors by telephone Thursday.

At Monday's council meeting, Simmons said he supports a bilingual Canada and hopes his own children will learn to speak both official languages. However, he fears bilingualism will eventually be forced on municipalities, causing an unnecessary financial burden.

Having the by-laws and municipal documents translated would be an "unnecessary expense" in townships like Snowdon, where the Francophone population is minimal, said Simmons.

Township Clerk Ernie Hills has been asked to get hold of the by-law passed by Sault Ste. Marie to be considered for passage at the next regular meeting.

Although Simmons said he hopes his township will pass the by-law, he will not be pursuing the matter at the county level. In a telephone interview Thursday, he said the indication from county councillors was that such a by-law would not receive sufficient support.

Dysart Reeve Bill Davis, who shares many of Simmons' concerns, said he would not support an English-only by-law at the county level. He said the county has too many other important issues on its plate to tackle another issue that has no direct bearing on this county.

"I have trouble dealing with things like this," said Davis. "How does it become a concern of a municipality? We have to deal with so many other issues," he said

At a recent meeting of Rural Ontario Municipalities Association (ROMA), Davis voted against a resolution to back the fight against Ontario's French Language Services Act. Although he said he supports the intent of the resolution, debate on the matter at the ROMA conference deteriorated into a "racist issue," he said. "I voted against it on the terms in which it was presented," the Dysart Reeve said in an interview Thursday.

There was a lot of confusion over this issue at the ROMA conference, said Davis. "Racist remarks became part of it. When that happens, to me it becomes racist."

The resolution was ultimately defeated. The province's Bill 8 is designed to provide services to the 500,000 Francophones in Ontario, Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins said in a recent letter to Anson, Hindon and Minden. It applies to provincial government services only and does not impose on municipalities.

Hospitals need better funding

Inquest recommends 20 measures to improve Ontario's ailing health care

More funding is needed for hospitals to function at their optimum level, a coroner's jury recommended at the close of an inquest into the circumstances surrounding the death of a Minden boy.

This recommendation was one of 20 put forth Friday by the jury investigating the May 2 death of 11-year-old Terry Spooner.

"Ontario used to have the best health care in the world," said Terry's stepfather, Ben Manuge, "but they've cut it back to the point where (hospitals) can't run at capacity."

Terry, who was suffering from pneumonia, was denied admission to Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children for two weeks in April of last year because a nursing shortage had forced the world renowned hospital to close many of its beds.

Terry was eventually admitted through the hospital's emergency department, but died from complications from his treatment, the verdict of the coroner's jury indicates.

Manuge said he and his wife, Bev, were impressed with the jury's recommendations. "They sat through nine days of complicated medical evidence and they grasped what was going on." He said the recommendations reflect the "critical" state of Ontario's health care system.

In addition to the recommendation for increased funding, the jury suggested that incentives should be established to address the nursing shortage, and computerized communications between hospitals be implemented province wide regarding the availability of services.

In all, the jury came back with 20 recommendations regarding medical procedures, hospital funding, communications and nursing. "They found 20 areas where the medical system needs to be changed,"

'If Terry's death save's one life, it's all worth it.' Terry's Spooner's stepfather is satisfied the jury's recommendations will save lives if they are implemented.

said Manuge.

He said he was impressed with the jurors' ability to grasp the information and with the way they presented their recommendations.

In its verdict, the five jurors dedicated their recommendations to Terry's memory.

"We the members of the jury, wish to take this opportunity to express our sympathy to the family of Terrence Spooner," the jury wrote in its introduction. "The death of a child is a very devastating thing and has touched the hearts and minds of each and every one of us. Although Terry had to struggle with medical problems throughout his life, he was fortunate to have been part of such a caring family. It is for this reason that we dedicate the recommendations of this jury to the memory of Terrence Spooner."

Terry had suffered from recurring lung infections for most of his life. As an infant, Terry's malformed esophagus, the body's main food passage, was surgically replaced with colon tissue. This man-made esophagus periodically allowed food particles into his trachea, which caused infection and scarring of his lungs.

In February of last year, Terry was being treated by Dr. Steven Dawson for pneumonia. As his condition worsened, Terry was referred to Dr. Wesson, who attempted to have him admitted to the Hospital for Sick Children on April 11.

Evidence presented at the inquest showed that attempts by Dr. Wesson's office to have Terry immediately admitted to the hospital failed due to a shortage of serviced beds. A booking was made for elective surgery for May 10 and Terry was to be admitted on May 8.

However, the jury's report says Terry's condition deteriorated and on April 24 he was admitted to the emergency ward of the Minden Hospital. Dr. Dawson saw him there and considered Terry's condition to be urgent. The following evening he was admitted to Sick Children's Hospital through its emergency department.

On April 29, doctors noted an increase in Terry's respiratory distress, and was moved to the Intensive Care Unit, where he was put on a respirator. According to the jury's report, doctors decided on April 30 that his condition was such that he would be able to withstand the procedures that had been planned.

By May 1, his condition "seemed to have stabilized and even to have improved slightly," the report said. "Terry was given a general anesthetic and an esophagoscopy was performed. Flexible Bronchoscopy followed and the placement of an IV line."

Still on a respirator, he was returned to the Intensive Care Unit just after midnight on May 2. Respiratory function continued to deteriorate requiring higher airway pressures for ventilation. These rising pressures ultimately caused rupture of large airways and led to an air embolism that resulted in his death.

Manuge said he hopes the recommendations from the inquest are taken seriously. "I hope that some of those things are acted on so other children don't die," he said.

Although he says the inquest was "a strenuous experience—an emotional roller coaster—Bev and I feel satisfied we did it."

"If Terry's death saves one life, it's all worth it," he said.

The 20 recommendations cover all of his concerns. However, he says they all boil down to the one key recommendation for improved funding for health care.

Terry was not denied access to the hospital because of bed shortage, said Manuge, but because the hospital didn't have enough nurses to operate at full capacity. Manuge says there are 550 beds at the Hospital for Sick Children and many of them are left vacant because of the staffing shortage.

Manuge says he is confident Terry would be alive now if he had been admitted on April 11. Prompt admission to the hospital would have allowed Terry to be treated for pneumonia, he said, which would have minimized the damage to his lungs and allowed him to begin eating normally again.

"Terry's death was very, very preventable," he said.

Instead of putting money into "stupid things," Manuge says the province should be working to restore the health care system. "If the people of Ontario were aware of how bad our medical system is, they'd be amazed," he said.

Unless there is immediate action on these recommendations, Manuge says "there will be a lot of children who will die before it is rectified."

Verdict has province-wide impact

The inquest into last May's death of 11-year-old Terry Spooner brought forth 20 recommendations that, if implemented, could have an impact on health care right across the province.

The recommendations, made at the close of the nine-day inquest last Friday in Toronto are as follows:

FUNDING

- Government funding should be increased to allow hospitals to function at optimum levels;
- The transfer of funds to the provincial health care system should be based on realistic, statistical health care needs;
- If cutbacks are necessary, a minimum lead time of six months should be provided to enable hospitals to make alternative plans to deal with the situation;
- If restriction of funds is deemed necessary, representatives of health care professions should be consulted to assess the impact on the health care system and these findings should be made public;
- Any such planned cutbacks should be made known to hospitals and the public;
- Extra skills required for Intensive Care Unit nurses should be reflected in significant extra compensation;

COMMUNICATION

- Computerized communication between hospitals should be implemented province wide regarding the availability of resources;
- All results of the autopsy report should be published in medical journals;
- All communication among patient/parents, medical staff and administrative staff should be documented to ensure proper communication takes place;
- Internal communications between a surgeon's office and hospital, or between a surgeon's office and a patient should be recorded by the surgeon's office;
- Internal communications relating to policy, procedure and practice should be acknowledged as received by all personnel affected;
- The responsible physician should be in contact with the family in the event of a patient's death. It is also desirable that the treating physician contact the family as soon as possible;
- Hospital administration must advise the public of limited capacity of hospitals;
- The final decision regarding admission to hospitals must be made by medical staff;
- Standardization of terms describing admission priority (ie. emergent, urgent, elective) should be province wide, preferably nation wide;

NURSING

- Funding should be provided to train nurses on a bursary program with the condition of a period of mandatory full-time tenure in the position following graduation;
- Priority should be given to a province-wide project to find innovative ways to retain current nursing staff. Areas such as nurses' residences, incentives for years of service, added vacation days, periodic days off, shorter working hours and shift preferences should be considered for possible solutions to the nursing shortage;
- A psychologist should be assigned for scheduled stress-management sessions and coping techniques;

PROCEDURE

- After surgery such as Terry Spooner's, where native tissue may be left behind, it is recommended that in cases of failing health and consequent investigative procedures, CAT scans, MRI or similar diagnostic techniques be employed;
- When an E-T tube is changed or repositioned, the position of the tube and airway pressure should be recorded to allow for detection of possible correlation.

Diplomacy

Last Thursday's meeting of Anson, Hindon and Minden council witnessed an example of the kind of tact, diplomacy and decorum that rate-payers should be able to expect from their elected officials.

The source of this lesson in behaviour was Councillor Mike Maher who intervened in a squabble between Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry and local developer Brad Bradamore and salvaged a possible solution to a deadlock over one of Bradamore's projects.

The dispute centred around a commercial plaza Bradamore is trying to build on Bobcaygeon Road across from Guardian Drugs.

Berry expressed concern about the project, given Bradamore's record of selling unfinished development projects, and Bradamore accused the Deputy-Reeve of being closed-minded and anti-development.

The discussion soon digressed into the kind of petty, insulting sparring match that has marred council proceedings far too often in the past.

Enter Maher. He steered the discussion back to the topic at hand, and turned an ugly display of personal grudges into a productive, positive conversation.

He put aside the hard feelings which have lingered at council ever since Bradamore was fired from his position as the township's by-law officer, and got to the heart of the matter—what it will take to secure municipal approval for the plaza.

Essentially the project was threatened because of a Catch-22 situation. Council didn't want to approve the severances without a site plan and Bradamore didn't want to develop a costly site plan without the assurance of municipal approval.

Maher suggested an option that was used with Ray Moore's condominium proposal—approval in principle, conditional on a site plan being presented which addresses all concerns.

And by insisting that the Planning Advisory Council be involved in future negotiations, council has hopefully fostered a spirit of co-operation, rather than confrontation.

Bradamore and Berry each brought valid concerns to the council table, but presented them with all the grace of a bull in a china shop. However, thanks to the tact and diplomacy displayed by Maher, council was able to save the issue from being bogged down in name-calling and character assassination, and hopefully saved a much-needed commercial development at the same time.

Let's just hope goodwill is as contagious as ill will.

The Bear isn't a bore

Black 'n White

by Arthur Black

"In the United States you have freedom of speech. you can go up to Ronald Reagan and say, 'I don't like Ronald Reagan.' In the Soviet Union you have the same thing. You can go up to Chernenko and say, 'I don't like Ronald Reagan.'"

That is a very old joke, told by the Soviet defector/comedian Yakov Smirnoff 'way back in 1984 when the world was a very different place.

Today, Comrade Chernenko is dead, and Mister Reagan tours the globe as Rent-A-President, displaying the skills he honed during eight years in the Oval Office—viz: smiling and waving.

But more to the point, the old Russia is gone, too. Back in the late '60's, the American author Norman Mailer wrote "One of the reasons it's very, very hard to get pro-Russian for more than a few weeks is that we keep coming face to face with the fact that the Soviet Union must probably be the most boring country in the history of nations."

That was true in the 60's, true in the 70's—even true for most of the past decade. But sometime in the mid-80's the world began to be aware of a roly-poly Russian with a strawberry birthmark on his balding head, a man who taught the world two unfamiliar Russian words: glasnost and perestroika.

And suddenly the frozen giant called the Soviet Union broke an eight-decades-old deathgrip of hidebound ideology to become one of the most volatile geopolitical pressure cookers on the face of

A success

Editor:

Hats off to all of the organizers of the Snowfest Baseball Tournament held over the weekend in Minden.

Kevin, Craig, Gary Smith, Mark Davis and Harland Doige certainly worked hard to make this event a great success. This tournament also wouldn't have been a success without the help of the score keepers, umpires, fans and all of the sponsors who donated prizes.

Hope to see you again next year, if our aching muscles have healed by then.

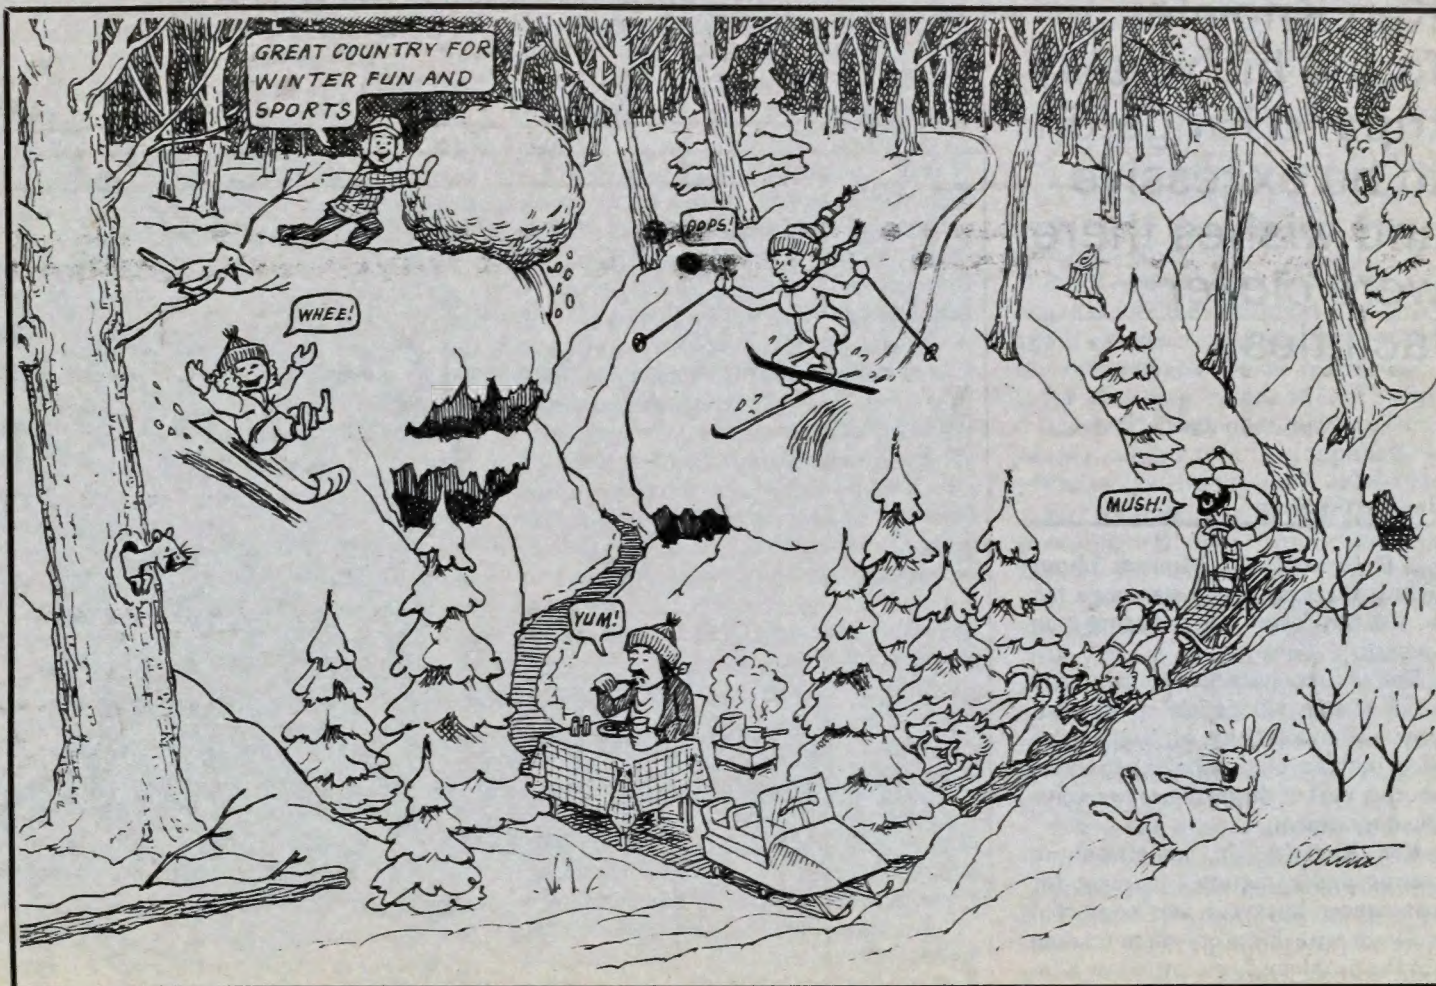

The Lochlin Team.

Three cheers for Ed Moll. Parents of all faiths can surely support his recommendations on religious education for our schools.

Barbara Nangle named coordinator of program

Editor:

You may be aware that the John Howard Society of Victoria/Haliburton has received partial funding from the Ministry of Skills Development to initiate a literacy program in Haliburton County. This program is available to any adult in the county who wishes to improve their reading, writing, comprehension and spelling skills. The model used will utilize trained volunteer tutors who will be matched with a learner on a one-to-one basis at no cost to the participants.

I am pleased to announce that Barbara Nangle has been hired as co-ordinator of the program effective January 11. Barbara is a graduate from the University of Waterloo and a long-time resident of Haliburton County. She brings with her extensive experience in working with volunteers, and has received a "Certificate of Merit" from the Government of Canada in recognition of her community involvement. Presently, Barbara is busy orienting herself with the program and trying to meet with tutors who have already been trained. Unfortunately, funding allows for Barbara to be available only one day per week and she feels that Mondays are most suitable. Her office is located at the Employment Services Centre in the Village of Haliburton (just behind Stedmans). A separate telephone line for the Haliburton Highlands Literacy Program has been installed, and an answering machine has been put in place for anyone who wishes to leave a message. The number is 457-3430.

I would also like to acknowledge the efforts of Jane Selbie in laying the groundwork for this program. Her support, input and encouragement have been most helpful.

Barbara is available to speak to community groups and organizations. At that time she will be able to provide you with more detailed information about the program. Barbara is looking forward to co-ordinating this much needed service and I know you will want to join me in welcoming her to the community network.

Changes in Russia are no laughing matter

the earth.

Which is wonderful. I can think of few more glorious tableaux in my lifetime than the sight of East Berliners and West Berliners drinking champagne together on that crumbling obscenity of a wall that used to bisect Berlin. I'm thrilled that the wind of freedom is gusting through Poland, Romania, Lithuania and all the other east European nations held in thrall these many years. I hesitate to bring up the down side, to introduce a gloomy, pessimistic note, but friends, if the old Russia is gone forever....

What are we going to do for Russian jokes?

We have a potentially serious shortfall situation here. Ethnic joke crops have been drying up all over the world. It is no longer politically or socially acceptable to tell Polish Jokes, Jewish Jokes, Scottish, Irish or Newfie jokes.

For the past few years the only ethnic strains hardy enough to withstand direct buffetings of humour have been WASPS and the Russians. And with all due respect to the former (some of my best friends, etc.) WASPS are not, when all is said and done...

all that hilarious.

But the Russians...hoo boy...now there was a veritable vineyard hilarity.

You heard about the American tourist who went to a Moscow dentist with a toothache? "Tooth must come out" said the dentist, "but is costing one thousand dollars."

"A thousand dollars!" yelled the American, "why, where I come from it costs twenty dollars to pull a tooth!"

"In Russia is more axpansive" said the dentist. "Ve haff to pull it through your ear. You can't open your mouth in Russia."

You heard about the Muscovite who stopped his friend running down the street to ask him where he was going?

"To Voronesh to buy meat" his friend replied.

"That's crazy!" said the Muscovite. "The only meat for 300 miles is right here in Moscow."

"I know" he said, "but the lineup starts in Voronesh."

Which reminds me of the lates Russian joke I've heard. A Russian stands in a lineup for hours. Finally he's fed up, curses, throws down his hat and snarls "I can't stand these lineups anymore. I'm going to shoot Gorbachev."

Two hours later the would-be assassin returns and joins the lineup. "What happened?" the others want to know.

"I decided to get back in this line" he said. "It's shorter than the lineup to shoot Gorbachev."

Hmmm. Maybe Russian humour's healthier than I thought.

Kinmount patient is no fan of Caplan

Ken Knowles found his weekly trips to Kingston to be excessive and wishes there were closer facilities.

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

If Ontario Health Minister Elinor Caplan is thinking about starting a fan club, she can forget about basing it in Kinmount.

For the second time this winter, a resident of that village has spoken out against the availability of health care services in this area after having to travel to another part of the province to receive medical treatment.

Ken Knowles, 76, underwent an operation and radiation treatment for throat cancer last year and contacted The Times with his story after reading about the problems faced by fellow Kinmount resident Bob Swanton.

Swanton had a kidney transplant in the fall and in an interview related the problems he experienced by having to go to Toronto for dialysis treatment.

Although his operation was performed in Peterborough's Civic Hospital, Knowles was forced to travel to Kingston for the radiation treatments which followed.

He's grateful for the care he received, and says his trips to Kingston were made as easy as possible, but Knowles thinks there should be additional facilities to better serve cancer patients in central Ontario.

"We need a cancer wing in Lindsay or Peterborough which is closer to the area of Haliburton and Victoria counties," says Knowles.

"It is time the government started to earn their money and pay attention to the needs of the tax payers who need treatment."

Knowles was one of a group of cancer patients who was forced to seek radiation therapy in Kingston when Toronto's Princess Margaret Hospital stopped accepting new patients because of an extensive waiting list.

Knowles' cancer was diagnosed when he went to Dr. Dawson in Minden with concerns about a lump on his neck, just under his jaw. Dawson referred Knowles to a specialist in Peterborough who arranged to have the lump removed.

After the operation it was suggested that Knowles undergo radiation treatment in order to eliminate any traces of the tumor which may have remained.

The 15 treatments in Kingston took two months and required weekly trips from Kinmount to Kingston. While in Kingston, Knowles stayed at the Quinte Thousand Island Lodge, a residence for out-of-town patients who don't require a hospital bed.

Kinmount resident Ken Knowles says Kingston is too far for local cancer patients to go to receive radiation treatment.

On the basis of subsequent examinations, Knowles' doctors think he's recovered well from the cancer.

"This came up all of a sudden," says Knowles. He says he was never sick a day in his life prior to the discovery of the tumour, and he never thought he would get cancer.

"At my age to find you have to go to the hospital, it starts you thinking," he says.

One of the drawbacks of having to go to Kingston, was that it prevented regular visits from his wife, who works at the Minden Hospital. Knowles would travel to Kingston on Sundays, stay through the week, and return to Kinmount on Fridays for the weekends.

The procedure was made easier by the fact that the Canadian Cancer Society provides drivers to take cancer patients to and from the hospital as part of the services they provide.

Knowles says the discovery that he had cancer was frightening. "It's kind of hard to say 'cancer'," he says. "It's something that everyone is afraid of."

Although the radiation treatments are over, Knowles is still required to make monthly trips to Kingston for examinations. Every time he goes down, he has to spend a total of six hours on the road for a check-up that takes from 15 to 30 minutes. "It should never have to happen like that," says Knowles. "For that amount of time you should be able to go somewhere closer. It's a waste."

Because the disease was diagnosed so early, Knowles never experienced any pain or illness. The only visible reminders of his ordeal is a faint scar under his jaw where the operation was performed, and a small bald patch behind his ear from the radiation treatments.

He considers himself lucky that he didn't require chemotherapy which can have more drastic side effects, such as severe illness and total hair loss.

Knowles almost had the chance to confront Caplan with his concerns about the state of local health care facilities. While he was staying in Kingston, Caplan visited the hospital where he was being treated. Some of the technicians urged Knowles to go over and speak to the minister, but Knowles says he was busy helping with a children's Christmas party and couldn't leave.

But given the chance again, Knowles knows what he'd say to Ontario's health minister. "I'd tell her to get something going for the areas north of Toronto," he says. "I'd say 'get some money and equip one of the hospitals with a cancer clinic, radiation machine and technicians'."

"The way she's treating the tax payer is not good. She's killed the hospital in Haliburton. We should have something in the north."

"No one wants to be away from home," says Knowles.

Not only has his experience demonstrated the need for additional medical facilities, but Knowles says it has also given him an appreciation of health in general.

"If you get cut or scratched, get it attended to," he says. "Watch, and if anything is different in your appearance or your skin, go to a doctor. Don't just leave it."

Developer accused of land flipping

Because of previous projects, Berry doubts developer's intentions access to property owned by Bradamore's wife Erica which is located on Mount Minden behind the proposed development.

According to the minutes of that meeting the, committee told Bradamore that by granting the severance they were "in no way approving or indicating approval of any further development (but) this was merely an approval to avoid landlocking the back property."

The committee denied the additional severances because they wanted Bradamore and his wife to submit development plans of their respective properties under a single plan of subdivision.

However the township has since been told, by both Bradamore's lawyer and their own lawyer, that despite the fact that Bradamore's property abuts his wife's, they should be treated as separate developments and should not be covered under the same plan of subdivision.

It was on this basis that Bradamore appealed the planning committee's decision to deny his severances. But he also complained about the manner in which his proposal has been treated by the municipality.

Bradamore claims two of the planning committee members, Dean Elliott and Verne Graham, have a conflict of interest because they own property within 400 feet of the site and should not be allowed to vote on its approval.

In light of Elliott's and Graham's failure to declare what he sees as an interest, Bradamore has asked council to remove them from the committee.

However, Berry ruled out that possibility. He said the township disagreed with the allegations of conflict of interest and said Graham and Elliott are "good" members of the committee. Berry told Bradamore that if he wished to pursue conflict of interest charges, that is his right.

Bradamore also charged that members of the planning committee had been in contact with real estate brokers who are involved with the project. He didn't name the committee member(s), but said they had told the broker that Bradamore's development had not yet received all the necessary approvals.

Saying these actions are detrimental to his development, Bradamore said planning committee members are "out of order" in talking to the broker.

"Take whatever action you think is appropriate," said Berry.

Bradamore's third complaint involved a Ministry of Labour inspection of his construction site. The inspection was carried out at the request of the township's building department because of complaints they received from residents in the area.

Although he admitted there was a problem with the excavation and the ministry inspector ordered him to erect a snow fence along the wall of the excavation, Bradamore said he was upset that the township had not contacted him earlier about the concerns before calling in the ministry.

Once Bradamore expressed his concerns, he presented his proposed development to council and requested they overturn the planning committee's decision.

Councillor Lewis Stevens asked Bradamore why, if there was only going to be one building on the site, he wanted to sever the property into three lots.

Bradamore said the severances were necessary in order to secure financing for the project. While it would be difficult to obtain a mortgage from a single company on the whole site, Bradamore said it would be easier to borrow money from three separate sources for the three lots.

Reading from a prepared statement, Berry offered his opinion on the proposal.

He admitted the planning committee erred in insisting Bradamore's development be dealt with at the same time as his wife's Mount Minden property. But then Berry brought up Bradamore's past involvement with the other two excavation sites along Bobcaygeon Road.

He said that in each of the two previous cases, Bradamore had presented development plans to council but had then sold tude towards his development would send a message to potential investors in the area. "People are willing to invest," said Bradamore. "If you don't want investment, tell us."

"People are watching," he said. "If they see you hammer us, no one will want to invest. Do you want development or don't you?" he asked.

He defended the sale of the other two development sites saying he had intended to build on the lots but had changed his mind. A developer has to be open to new ideas, said Bradamore.

Berry, acting as Reeve in Ray Moore's absence, opened the discussion up for comments from the other councillors. He said the bottom line is that council could overturn the planning committee's decision or adopt the position he had outlined in his statement.

Stevens said that because the planning

'I feel you are not a developer but a speculator who is flipping property'. Minden's Deputy Reeve is concerned that proper development should be promoted.

the undeveloped properties. The first site has been sold several times since Bradamore owned it, said Berry, and there has been no recent indication of any construction taking place on the site.

Development of the second location was similarly begun by Bradamore but has been sold to Ted Reid and Doug Johnson, who are pursuing plans to build a commercial plaza on the site.

Now Bradamore has started a "third hole" in front of his office and home, said Berry.

"I feel you are not a developer but a speculator who is flipping property," said Berry. In order to protect the citizens of Minden, Berry said council must encourage proper development.

In the case of Bradamore's proposal, Berry said the township should place conditions upon approval of the development. Some of the conditions he suggested were a site plan agreement, an engineering study, proper retaining walls, storm water drainage and approval of the design of the front of the building.

A site plan would ensure proper, safe development so the development can get under way, said Berry.

Bradamore said Berry's statement, prepared before the meeting, demonstrated that he had a closed mind and was unwilling to listen to anything the developer had to say.

"I can't respect a person with a closed mind," said Bradamore.

In response to criticisms about the three excavation sites, Bradamore said "everything looks worse before it looks better."

He said construction is planned for at least two of the three locations, his development and Johnson's. But admitted he didn't know what plans there were for the third site.

Bradamore said he wants his development to proceed in an orderly fashion but "if I don't get the severances, what's the use of a site plan?"

He cautioned that the township's atti-committee had wanted the proposal dealt with under a plan of subdivision, which, as it turns out, is not required, the format of the request had changed. "In my opinion we have an updated situation," said Lewis.

Councillor Mike Maher suggested that the development could be handled in the same way as the condo project proposed by Ray Moore for Newcastle Street.

In October, council approved the condominium proposal in principal, conditional upon the developer submitting an engineer's report which addressed concerns about the development.

Maher suggested that Bradamore, council and the planning committee all work together to arrive at an agreement. He said it was comforting to know Bradamore was actually going to develop the site as opposed to selling it, as had been done with the previous two locations.

He said it's good to know "something's going to appear except a hole in the ground."

Bradamore said he has no problem with having a site plan prepared but he doesn't want to spend the $6,000 to $7,000 it will cost he if isn't going to get his severances.

Maher said that if the site plan complies with the township's requirements, he could see no reason why the severances shouldn't be granted.

Berry said excavation at the third site began before the severances were granted and if construction doesn't take place on the site "council will be responsible for three scars on the face of Main Street."

The ball is back in council's court, said Maher, adding that the formula he suggested worked for the condo development.

Bob Sisson said he would like the planning committee to be included in any further discussion about the proposal and Stevens said council should also attend the meeting.

Berry tried to cut off the discussion in order to move to the next item on council's agenda, but Stevens expressed concern about stopping discussion before some sort of action was taken. "What have we done?" he asked Berry.

"We've voiced our concerns," said Berry.

"But nothing came of it," said Stevens.

Bradamore accused Berry of trying to halt the discussion because they were close to resolving the issue. He said he would spend the money on a site plan if council approved his severances in principle.

Sisson said he had no problem with approving the project in principle, "if I know what I'm approving."

Berry said he was going to close the discussion unless someone wanted to put a resolution on the table.

"I guess we'd better put a resolution forward if you're bound and bent to move on," Lewis said to Berry.

"After an hour, I'm bound and bent," said Berry.

A resolution was passed for council members to attend the February 14 meeting of the planning committee to discuss Bradamore's proposal with the committee members.

"At least it doesn't kill it," said Stevens.

"It doesn't give it life either," said Maher.

Rabies: Health Unit says area a 'reservoir' for disease

There's no shortage of rabid animals in the Highlands, students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School learned last week.

Anyone who is bitten by an animal should report it right away to a parent, teacher or doctor, Public Health Inspector Tom Reddering told the Grade 7 students during a presentation in the school's library Tuesday morning.

Through education and vaccination of pets, the number of incidences of people being bitten by rabid animals has been steadily declining, the students learned from a film on the subject. However, southern Ontario is still considered to be the rabies capital of Canada.

This area has a good "reservoir" for rabies, Reddering said during the 45-minute presentation. By this, he means there are plenty of wild animals and undeveloped land where the virus can continue to thrive. "If you took a five-mile radius of Minden, you'd find from 100 to 200 rabid animals," he said.

While vaccination of pets plays a big part in reducing human contact with rabid animals, so does education. This is why the Health Unit is getting out to the schools to teach children about the potentially deadly virus.

The rabies virus is carried in the saliva of an infected animal and the most common means of transmission is through a bite. However, it can also be transmitted if the saliva comes in contact with an open wound, said Reddering.

It takes about two months for the symptoms to appear in a human, but by then it is too late to treat. "If you are bitten, don't try to be brave and not tell anyone," he told the students. Even if the animal wasn't showing any signs, it could be rabid, he said.

It takes about two or three days before the symptoms appear in an animal, but the virus can still be transmitted. "Even if your dog looks healthy, it might not be."

It is important to let someone know if you are bitten by an animal. "Tell your parents, a teacher or a doctor. We can investigate to see if the animal had rabies."

It is mandatory in Ontario that all pets be vaccinated, he said. Owners who fail to have their pets vaccinated could be fined up to $5,000.

The students were also told that pets should be kept under control at all times. If they are allowed to run free, the pets could find themselves in a fight with a rabid animal, said Reddering.

Skunks, foxes, raccoons, bats and coyotes are the most common wild animals to get rabies. Rabid animals often display unusual behaviour, he said. Normally, wild animals don't come into town, but a rabid animal may.

If you see a fox with porcupine quills in its mouth, it is probably rabid, he said. A healthy fox knows to stay away from porcupines, but a rabid one will attack.

In addition to Tuesday morning's presentation, Grades 3 and 4 students had an opportunity to learn about the disease on Monday. The Health Unit also gave a presentation on food handling to the Grade 8 students Tuesday morning.

Ontario is not bilingual; Eakins

Bill 8 applies only to services in areas where it's needed

The Act applies in "designated areas" (areas with more than 10 per cent francophones or urban areas with at least 5,000 francophones). In these areas, government offices will have signs in both languages and bilingual telephone answering services. In addition, some jobs may be designated as bilingual.

"The implementation of the French Language Services Act demonstrates this province's commitment to our national linguistic and cultural duality," Eakins wrote. "However, the Act should not be confused with a declaration of 'official bilingualism'. Ontario can only become officially bilingual if its legislature adopts a resolution stating so and if the federal parliament endorses this resolutions," said Eakins. "Such a step has not been taken, is not being considered at this time, and clearly would involve a full public debate if and when it is contemplated."

Reeve Simmons, who works for the Ministry of Tourism at the Bark Lake Ontario Camp Leadership Centre, said he is already seeing the demand for bilingualism increasing.

Any new employees with the ministry who will be in contact with the public must be bilingual, said Simmons. This held true when the camp recently hired a secretary, said Simmons.

Although Simmons' maintenance job is not in jeopardy of being declared a bilingual position, he says his opportunities for promotions or transfers are being eroded.

The French Language Services Act does not apply municipal governments, but Simmons says things are gradually leading in that direction.

"The Charter of Rights is the hidden villain of it all," said Simmons. He said it is possible that one person demanding services in French might find satisfaction through the charter. He points to last year's Ontario Court of Appeal ruling that brought about the end of the Lord's Prayer in public schools as evidence of how an individual can use the charter.

Although Simmons said he found little support from fellow county councillors in his Thursday-night poll, he is not alone in his objections.

In the 1988 municipal elections, Stanhope Township residents overwhelmingly voted against expanded French language services in a referendum on this question.

Glamorgan Township Council has also formally opposed the introduction of French language services in the township. In June, 1988, council passed a resolution stating that Bill 8 is unacceptable because of the low francophone population of the township.

Another resolution, passed on February 7 of this year, further declares that English should remain the only working language of the township.

Glamorgan's most recent resolution reads as follows: "... notwithstanding that this municipality is an 'undesignated area' under the provisions of the French Language Services Act (Bill 8), this council perceives instances of reverse discrimination in the hiring practices of the senior levels of government... therefore, to prevent any instance of reverse discrimination in this municipality, and in order to continue the stability, equibity, and efficiency of the provision of municipal services and programs, since English is still recognized as an international language, this municipality's official language shall continue to be English..."

Graham tells Task Force about the importance of provincial archives

The chairman of Anson, Hindon and Minden Local Architectural Advisory Committee told the Premier's Task Force on Heritage Years people should be more aware of the provincial archives and the importance of records.

Verne Graham appeared before the committee that was making a stop in its tour of fourteen different regions throughout the province.

"The history of our area does not go back as far as some of the areas to use a pioneering term as those 'out front'," Graham told the committee, chaired by Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins.

He said the first recorded information to be entered into government records that dealt with our area involved the Mississauga Indians, when on November 5, 1818 they signed Treaty 20 and surrendered all that part of Haliburton County lying south of the 45th parallel. The area included the major part of the land making up the municipality of Anson, Hindon and Minden.

Graham said the first white person to set foot in the municipality was one of the Royal Engineers appointed by the British Government to search for a water route that would connect Georgian Bay with the Ottawa River. Lieutenant Catty of the Royal Engineers travelled up the Gull River and through the municipality in 1819.

Another Royal Engineer was sent to the area in 1826 to confirm the findings of the first and then in 1826, Lieutenant Marlow was sent to the area.

"One can only assume that they had already discovered our now famous vacation area," Graham said.

He said a lot of information was to be obtained from the archives and keeping records is very important.

Eakins agrees with this and said it would be a good idea to think about having an archives in the Victoria-Haliburton area where records and documents can be stored for generations to come.

The first record of settlers in the Anson, Hindon and Minden area comes from the records of the lumber companies, Graham said.

They built a hand hewn log house as a logging outpost. The outpost was built in 1853 and has been occupied ever since.

"This is a beautiful log home and is still standing. A plaque has been installed by the province commemorating the Gull River water way and the Old Clergy House, the name by which it is currently known. Graham told the committee the house is now for sale and it would be nice if it could be purchased and permanently secured for future years.

Graham said he knows the speaker of the house for the federal government has a summer home, owned by the government, and he thinks it might be nice if the provincial government provided the same kind of accommodation, perhaps in the log home now for sale. He told the committee the price of the home had just gone down from $350,000 to $300,000 on Friday.

There are many places of historic value in the municipality, he said. The original home of Rev. Fred Burt, who established St. Paul's Anglican Church in Minden in 1865 is still standing and in fine condition. The construction of this home is what is known as stack piled. The lumber piled on its flat side and staggered so that it formed the lathe for its plastered interior and exterior.

"Another building that plays an important role in our community is the church which had the main structure completed in 1871," Graham said. "The church is still standing and its interiors of tongue and groove ash lumber is unique. This with the pine scissor trusses and very old coloured glass windows leaves a lasting impression on the viewer."

In 1889 another church was built in the township near Horseshoe Lake. This is Bethel Church and is built out of log and has unique pointed windows not common for a log structure. The church and cemetery is owned by the municipality.

The Twelve Mile Lake Church is another building of historic value and will be celebrating its centennial this year. It is owned by the United Church and has just been completely restored to its original state.

Graham said none of the buildings he told the committee about has been designated as historic buildings. "They all should be," he said. If all arrangements can be completed as planned they will all be voluntarily designated.

The buildings are all privately owned except for the Bethel Church.

"Let's celebrate 1991 by having all these buildings designated and thus maintain our heritage for many more anniversaries," he said.

He told the committee it would be nice if a special fund could be created for use by LACAC committees to help celebrate the past and preserve future heritage.

Committee co-ordinator Dave Selby asked Graham how this should be done since there are so many committees who would be applying for funding.

Graham didn't have a ready answer to Selby's question but said there could be some kind of filtering process through the municipal government.

The task force was created in November and started work the following month. Eakins said he is really learning a lot about the history of Ontario during the hearings and this had made him want to get more involved in the historical societies in the county.

Eakins said more should be done locally to find out about the area history. He is hoping the committee can create an awareness of the importance of heritage and history.

To date the committee has received more than 250 briefs and letters from interested citizens as well as hearing many presentations.

Eakins said there doesn't have to be a lot of money spent to preserve the province's heritage. The official bi-centennial of Ontario is 1991 and Eakins said the committee will not be recommending to the premier that a lot of money be spent on a big party.

The committee is expected to present its report to the premier in late February or early March and Eakins said the final decision on what role the province will take in marking anniversaries over the next three years is up to the premier and cabinet.

IDEA is trying to raise awareness

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

A Minden resident has expressed concern to the municipal council about the suitability of the village's sidewalks for people who use wheelchairs.

Eleanor Pye, a member of the support group Individuals Deserving Equal Access (IDEA), has written a letter to Reeve Ray Moore outlining her concerns.

"It is good news that you plan to improve the sidewalks in Minden," Pye writes. "Before planning ramps etc., would you please talk to our group for suggestions?"

Pye says she has had two bad falls in the village while using the electric scooter which helps her get around. The falls occurred while using the ramps at Bobcaygeon Road and Anson Steet, which she calls "slanted and awkward."

The sidewalk improvements that Pye refers to, are the plans to upgrade the downtown core as part of the PRIDE program.

When considering Pye's letter at last Thursday's meeting, council said the portion of the sidewalk mentioned in the letter, is not included in the current PRIDE program.

However, councillor Mike Maher, who has discussed with Pye her concerns said council should "see what we can do."

In her letter, Pye also says she has "become increasingly concerned about the lack of access to stores and buildings in Minden and Haliburton."

Councillor Lewis Stevens said he would bring Pye's concerns to the attention of the Minden Business Improvement Area (BIA).

IDEA was formed as a support group for people experiencing difficulties getting around due to physical disabilities. Besides

Pye, other core members of the group include Phyllis Sisson, Rod Henderson, Dave Woodall and Carol Duncan. It was Henderson who came up with the group's name.

Pye says that although seniors make up the largest single segment of the popu-

Seniors group seeks support

Before Snowdon township extends any funding a Kinmount seniors club, Reeve George Simmons first wants to see evidence that the club is making an effort to support itself.

The club, which operates out of the former railway station in Kinmount has asked for some financial support from Snowdon Township since several of the residents live here.

However, at last Monday's council meeting, Reeve Simmons suggested council first ask for proof that the club is active and organized.

Simmons said he is in favour of helping the club, but the members should also be helping themselves.

He said it is his understanding the "organization's been in disarray" since one of its key members died.

The seniors use the club one night each week to play cards, said Simmons, and members pay an annual fee of $2. "You just can't operate that building on one night a week of cards," he said. "That's not enough."

Simmons said the club has to become more active with projects such as raffles to raise some money on their own.

In addition to the donation requested from Snowdon, the club is asking for support from Galway and Somerville Townships.

New Chamber staff

Staffing at the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce is almost up full strength now that a new manager has been hired.

Robyn Jarvis, from Millgrove, Ont., brings a wealth of experience in tourism and public relations to her new position at the Chamber. She is teaming up with staff members Mary Anne Wilson and Risa Bacon at the Chamber office on Highway 35 in Minden.

Jarvis, who started work on February 1, was selected from more than 70 candidates for the position. She has had the opportunity to meet the directors of Chamber and is looking forward to meeting all the members in the next several months.

A graduate of the three-year tourism program at Sir Sandford Fleming College in Peterborough, Jarvis said she became familiar with this area through visits with friends while at college.

In 1989, Jarvis graduated from Lakehead University with majors in personnel administration and industrial relations.

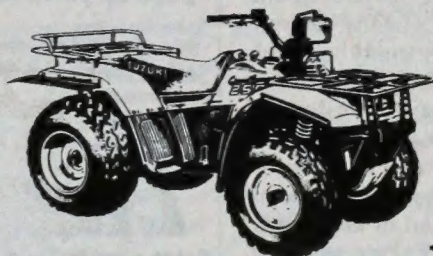

After college, she found work in the tourism field with the Burlington Chamber of Commerce's tourism department. In addition to her experience with the Burlington Chamber of Commerce, Jarvis worked as a public relations officer for African Lion Safari, and as an assistant manager of a ski shop in Alberta.

One of her first duties with the chamber will be to establish a new filing system at the office. Once that is completed she will be involved in the hiring of a secretary to bring the staff back up to full strength.

The Haliburton County Snowmobile Association has recognized the co-operation and support of Dysart politician Murray Fearrey. The association president, Peter Overington, right, made the presentation February 2. Dysart Councillor Brian Watts accepted the plaque on behalf of Fearrey. The special recognition was made for his years of support for the HCSA and most recently for his backing of the newly installed corridor loop system which links most trails in the county. Following the presentation, the association hosted a special ride for local politicians, the media and others interested in the sport. Riding snowmobiles provided by Bombardier Inc., represented locally by Prentice Berry Ltd., the riders had an opportunity to get a first-hand look and the loop trail.

An IDEA of easy access

lation that requires assistance in being mobile, IDEA is committed to helping all those who need it, regardless of age.

The group wants to help people with physical disabilities throughout Haliburton County, whenever possible, says Pye.

One of the problems IDEA has to work to overcome is a general ignorance about the needs of people with disabilities, says Pye. She says that even people with the best of intentions can't always understand the needs of someone who uses a wheelchair.

IDEA is trying to help correct the situation by encouraging communication between the public and the group. The request to Minden council to consult with IDEA about the sidewalks is an example of this kind of information lobby.

Ordinary things like the layout of senior's housing or the construction of entrances into public buildings and stores are areas where IDEA would like to improve access in the county.

Pye is luckier than some because she is able to walk on her own for short distances, enabling her to leave her scooter parked on the sidewalk to enter stores. For someone who relies on the use of an aid, such as a wheelchair, even one step can be enough to prevent entrance into a store or building.

Because so many local stores have entrances which make access difficult or impossible, Pye says many of the people with disabilities in the county do their shopping in malls in other towns and cities. If access were made easier, Pye says these people would prefer to shop locally.

At least one Minden store owner, Jim McMahon of McMahon's Feed 'N' Harness, is planning on building a ramp at the front of his business to make access easier.

Being a member of IDEA offers support from people who share her concerns and are in "the same boat" as herself, says Pye. She says they try to find ways to make their meetings interesting and describes IDEA as a little club.

The focus is support, "not whining," she says.

Junior Jug Band delights both parents and children

The Junior Jug Band played to an enthusiastic audience at the Haliburton High School on February 4. Dancing, clapping and singing along to the varied tunes, children and parents thoroughly enjoyed the band's performance. Kids were even invited up onto the stage at times to add their musical talents to the Junior Jug Bands lively songs.

MNR may extend moth spraying beyond 1991

The Minister of Natural Resources is seriously considering extending the Gypsy Moth spray program beyond 1991, Dysart Reeve Bill Davis says.

"I was left with the impression that changes will come," Davis said after addressing a question to Natural Resources Minister Lyn McLeod at a recent Rural Ontario Municipalities (ROMA) conference.

Davis, who chairs Haliburton County's Acid Rain and Forestry Committee, said the county has petitioned the ministry to provide continued funding to battle infestations of Gypsy Moths. Since the minister had not responded to correspondence from the county, he took advantage of the opportunity at the ROMA conference to again raise the issue with the minister.

"She was straight forward about it," Davis said of McLeod's response to his question. He is confident the ministry is working on a plan to extend the program beyond its mandate, which winds up in 1991. "It won't be dead after this year," said Davis.

Infestations of Gypsy Moths were found defoliating trees on property around Gull Lake last summer. Since this discovery, county council has taken steps to launch a spray program for this spring. These steps include the hiring of a co-ordinator and participation on a committee that involves several other counties.

More than 500 property owners have applied to have their lands sprayed with the biological insecticide

Bacillus thuringiensis (Bt) this spring.

According to Davis, the ministry has provided almost $550,000 annually to help combat these highly-destructive insects. He hopes that, in addition to extending its mandate, the ministry will increase the amount funding it provides for this purpose.

Davis said he was pleasantly surprised that the minister appeared to be well informed about the Gypsy Moth problem. Since she is relatively new to this portfolio, Davis was afraid McLeod might be unaware of the scope of the Gypsy Moth problem. However, he said it was clear from her response at the ROMA conference that his fears were unfounded.

Four-year-old Ashley Maskell was the winner of a colouring contest sponsored by the Westside Jug City variety store chain. Her colourful entry was judged the best in the under-five-years age category of all Jug City stores in Ontario. She won a portable television, held by her mother, Michelle.

Speed and thoroughness were tested as a ski patrol team tends to a fallen skier at the Canadian Ski Patrol Kawartha Zone competition at Sir Sam's on Saturday. Nine teams participated in the event.

'Injured' skiers get first aid at Sir Sam's

by Jay Kerr-Wilson

Given the number of "injured" skiers who were scattered on the slopes of Sir Sam's ski area this Saturday, it was a good thing there was so many members of the Canadian Ski Patrol on hand.

It wasn't really a coincidence. This year, the ski hill played host to the ski patrol competition for the Kawartha Zone, and the "injuries" were actually scenarios set up by the judges to test the speed and skill of ski patrol members from across the area.

Nine teams from the zone took part in the event which included a written test on first aid and practical tests in indoor, downhill and cross-county situations.

The three-person teams were judged on the speed with which they dealt with a victim and their assessment and treatment of injuries.

The indoor scenario involved a victim who had been electrified while trying to repair a television set. Teams had to treat electrical burns to the victim's hand and foot, try to assess if there were any further injuries and find out from the somewhat dazed victim as much as they could about other medical problems which may affect treatment.

"Ski patrols are just below ambulance attendants in the amount of first aid knowledge they should have," said John Hogg, a member of the Haliburton patrol.

In this sort of competition, Hogg said there is only a very small margin between the teams that finish first and the teams that finish last. "If the competition is out of 1000 points, there is only about a 20 point difference between the first and last teams," he said.

Ski patrols test skills

Because of the very small point spread, Hogg said the judges look for teams to make any extra effort beyond basic first aid and treatment. The points awarded for this extra effort is the difference between winning and losing.

All teams are expected to be able to identify and stabilize immediate, life-threatening injuries but if team members are also able to treat minor injuries, such as small cuts, without taking too much time, they would receive extra points for the effort.

On the slopes, the teams faced a much more serious situation that demanded more attention and immediate action.

They were required to rescue a victim who had taken a bad fall and was lying unconscious in the snow. The ski patrollers had to examine the victim, determine that he had received severe head injuries and was bleeding internally.

Once they were aware of the skier's injuries, they had to stabilize him as best they could, and load him onto a toboggan for transportation down the hill to a waiting ambulance. All under the watchful eyes of the score-keeping judges.

To help add realism to the tests, the victims had make-up on which closely resembled the injuries they were supposed to be suffering from. A drop of fake blood in a victim's left ear indicated a fractured skull and a red blister, made of wax, represented a burn from a wood stove.

The competition is designed to let ski patrols practice skills they might not normally have to use, and also to work towards decreasing the amount of time it takes to administer first aid.

Members of the Haliburton ski patrol team work against the clock to tend to a 'victim' of electrical burns. The team was one of nine testing their skills in first aid and rescue at Sir Sam's ski area.

Arena repairs could interfere with Fall Fair

Agricultural Society is hopeful it will be allowed to use the curling club for its events

The Minden Agricultural Society might not have the use of the arena for one of its two main events this year.

Depending on when repairs to the building are carried out, other accommodations might have to be found for either the barbecue in June, or the County Fair in August.

Society member Marg Miller was at last Thursday's council meeting to try and arrange space for indoor concession booths at the County Fair.

She asked council whether or not the arena would be available for the June barbecue, in light of the renovations which have to take place.

Deputy-Reeve Bern Berry

told Miller that the timing of the repairs will depend on recommendations from an engineer. "We don't want the arena to fall down around us," said Berry.

Councillor Mike Maher said he's more concerned about the availability of the arena during the County Fair in August. He said that if the renovations take three months to complete, it is preferable to have the work done during June, July and August. If the work is delayed until the fall, Maher said it would interfere with hockey season, when the arena is used the most.

A delay would also mean that the work would still be going on when the cold weather arrives in November and December, and Maher said it was winter construction which caused the problem in the first place.

The arena was built during the winter, and calcium was placed in the mortar to keep it from freezing. Last year it was discovered that the calcium has begun to corrode the steel beams which make up the frame of the arena.

The township is suing the companies responsible for the construction of the arena, because adding calcium to mortar contravenes the Ontario Building Code and the Canada Standards Act.

Bob Sisson said that the repair work might not necessitate the closing of the arena floor, which would mean the building could still be used. "If we can keep it open we will," said Sisson.

The Agricultural Society is pursuing the possibility of renting space from the curling club to house concession booths during the Fair.

The curling club executive is wary of renting the space because they are having the floor painted this spring.

Council suggested that perhaps the Agricultural Society could agree to place plywood on the floor surface to protect the painted floor.

Berry said that council would help the society approach the curling club with the request and see if an agreement could be worked out.

Ontario Hydro would like to share its thoughts on tomorrow's electricity needs

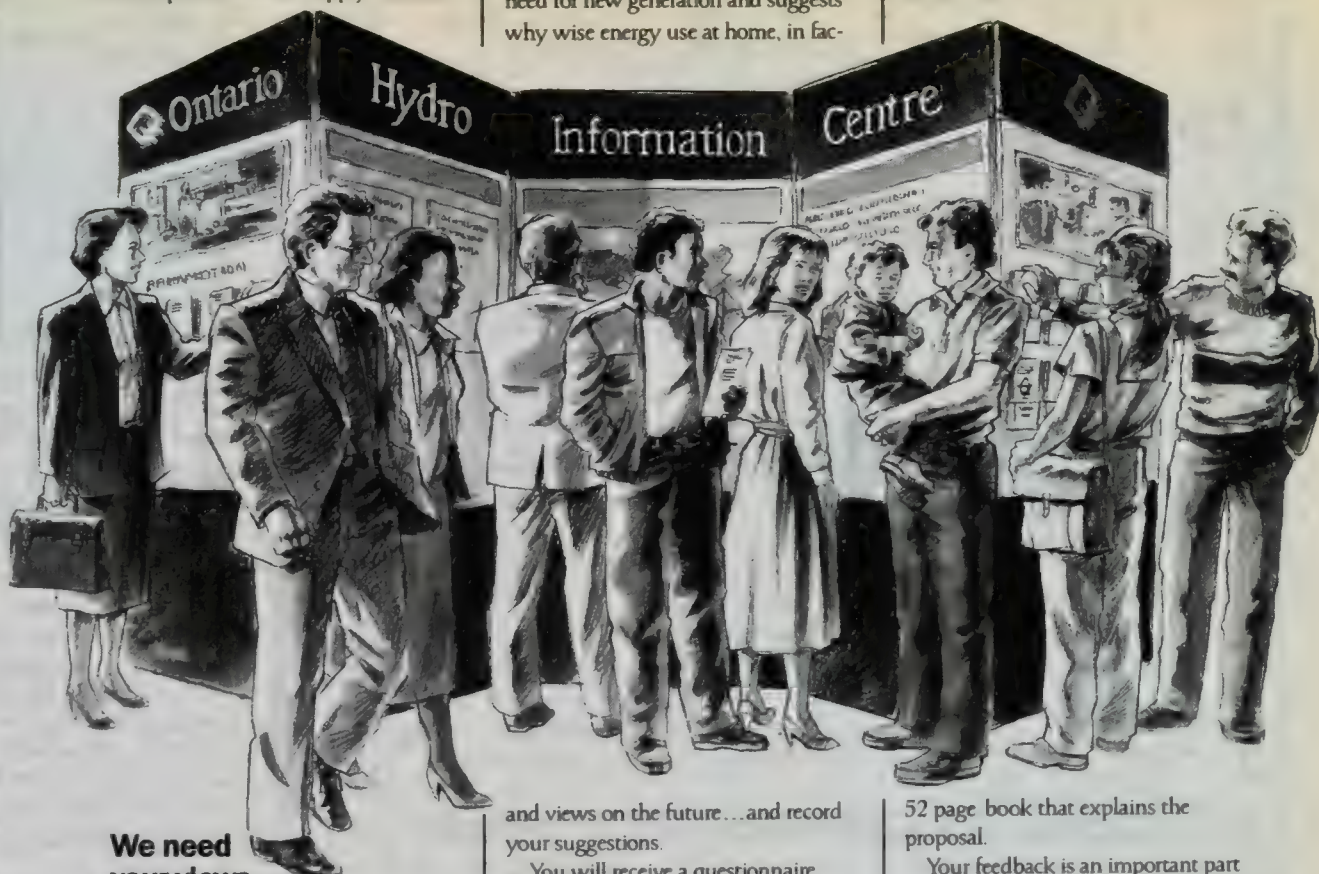

And we invite you to give us yours.

Over the years Ontario's appetite for electricity has been steadily growing. Within the next ten years, we face the very real possibility that demand may outstrip our available supply.

That's why Ontario Hydro has introduced "Providing The Balance of Power" a proposal that looks at how we can make the best possible use of all our existing resources, examines the possibilities of purchasing electricity from our neighbours, discusses the need for new generation and suggests why wise energy use at home, in facories and in the office is essential. It sets out the issues that will affect all our energy futures in the years ahead.

You're invited to discuss Providing The Balance of Power at the Ontario Hydro Information Centre.

We need your views—we need your feedback.

Staff at the Information Centre are there, not only to explain the proposal, but more importantly to listen to your ideas and views on the future...and record your suggestions.

You will receive a questionnaire which can be filled out at the Information Centre, or, if you'd prefer, mailed from home later on. And you'll also receive a copy of a comprehensive 52 page book that explains the proposal.

Your feedback is an important part of the process in meeting tomorrow's energy needs.

Wilson offers more insight into the decade debate

Editor,

I apologise for prolonging the debate further, but Peter Stickland's letter of January 29, which continues the discussion of whether this decade begins in 1990 or 1991, demands reply.

Stickland is right: it is a matter of simple arithmetic. When we count on our fingers, we start at one. When we calculate time, however, we start at zero. Stickland has set this out perfectly in his description of the hypothetical four dials. Each dial, as he says, "has 10 graduations" (zero, one, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine) and "at the beginning of the Christian era, all four dials read zero." Thus, when each dial has gone through all 10 numbers, it stands again at zero. So when we reach a number ending in zero (10, 100, 1990), we are at the start of a new cycle (decade, century, millenium).

Stickland claims that, having admitted an initial inability to sort the question out definitively for myself, I am helplessly swayed by the number of degrees the proponent of each argument has. Au contraire, I have considered both carefully and am persuaded by the logic of Prof. Jones' proof. Paradoxically, Stickland's argument, as set out above, only convinces me further.

Stickland cites The Times as having "admitted its error" in starting the decade this year. However, I have been given to understand since that your Editor's Note to the first letter was intended sarcastically. Frankly, I missed the sarcasm at the time; obviously Stickland did too.

As to whether the year 2000 is a leap year or a common year, I was intrigued to learn from Stickland that not every year divisible by four is a leap year. Taking to heart his dictum that "simply stated facts are verifiable in any library", I called the Science and Technology section of the Metropolitan Toronto Reference Library to check it out. Apparently, Stickland has it backwards.

He is correct about the need to make periodic corrections in our calendar beyond the quadrennial addition of 24 hours with which we are familiar. However, according to the World Almanac Book of Facts, "three of every four centesimal years (years ending in zero) are made common years, not leap years", even though they are divisible by four. According to this reference book, 1600 was a leap year; 1700, 1800 and 1900 were common years. Thus the year 2000—the fourth centesimal year—will be a leap year.

Finally, it is very rude of Stickland to make pejorative remarks about Prof. Jones' mental acuity without having met him. Not having seen him myself for a few years, I made inquiries of someone who sees him frequently and was delighted to learn that his remarkably-agile mind is as quick and fresh as ever.

There is one area, however, in which Stickland and I are in complete sympathy. Just as his letter was "garbled" and rendered "incomprehensible" in the transition from stationery to newsprint, mine suffered the deletion of an entire line, at the very least a cause for confusion. Let us hope that the word-eating typesetting machine has gone on a diet and left this missive intact. In any event, it's the last I have to say on the subject.

M. Susan Wilson

EDITOR'S NOTE: There was no sarcasm intended my December 23 admission of error on the start of a new decade—a touch of levity, perhaps, but not sarcasm.

After reading all the arguments on this issue, I'm more convinced than ever that the decade does not come to a close until the end of this year.

And on this note, I'm sounding the final bell to end the decade debate. Unless someone has some startling new evidence to shed light on this matter, the issue is closed, at least until the end of the decade.

HAVE appreciates support

Editor:

On behalf of the HAVE committee, I would like to take this opportunity to thank all the friends of HAVE who continue so generously to assist us in helping those in desperate need of water, medical and educational assistance.

We have recieved over $1,000 in Christmas donations from the community and Ed Moll and the congregation of the Carnarvon United Church should be thanked for the significant contribution they made to these donations.

We hope that the same spirit of co-operation will once again make this year's Walk for Water another success. Please let me remind you that this year's Walk will again be held on the first weekend in June. We can certainly use a great deal of support from all volunteers before and during this event. If you are able to assist please call Mr. Ron Reid - Chairman for the Walk for Water at 489-2431.

Three Minden skaters did a great job representing the club at Uxbridge '90 Invitational Competition on January 27 and 28. Marita Schrader, Kristi Barkwell and Cori Barkwell earned good marks for their performances in this two-day competition, each placing first in their flights. Kristi placed second overall in the Preliminary 'B' Ladies category, while Marita was sixth. Cori was third overall in the pre-novice ladies category.

Shaw top scorer in men's league

There were a lot of high scoring games at the Minden Arena this winter as the six teams in the Monday night men's recreational league battled it out.

The team with the most goals to their credit, though, was Hartwick, largely due to the combined efforts of Brian Shaw and Jeff Howe. Shaw finished the season with more goals to his credit than any other player in the six-team league. Howe wasn't far off Shaw's pace.

The top goal scorers in the league are as follows:

Having only one celebration would save on bubbly costs

Editor:

Regards to David McKnight, who has injected an argumentative vein with common sense ("The Decade Debate," Feb. 5). The good doctor has diagnosed the malaise that boosts our inability to think, isolating the bug that turns us into mathematical halfwits. "Ten years all starting with 198," he writes, "are easily referred to as 'The Eighties.'"

You said it! The years 1980-89 are TOO easily referred to as "The Eighties", an unfortunate concept valid in one respect only: as a rough-and-ready temporal grab bag for the purpose of reminiscence. It's when this loose cluster of years solidifies as concrete, to be touted as a bona fide decade stamped with contentious numbers and foisted on our Christian calendar (ticking along nicely ever since AD 1 with neat — 1 to — 0 decades) that trouble occurs.

Just how loose are these decade approximations? Reviewers of U.S. prohibition years cite "The Roaring Twenties", unmindful that prohibition lasted till 1933. To call depression years "The Dirty Thirties" doesn't mean the poor became wealthy as 1939 ended. According to the Oxford English Dictionary (OED), the practice began about 1880. Before a century had passed, it became obnoxious when writers, beginning to look forward as well as back, blindly labelled future decades with numbers in conflict with the calendar. When professors, bank presidents, media networks and publishing houses such as Maclean's and Time-Life jumped on the bandwagon, common sense went out the window, while brainwashed millions plan to celebrate the next millennium one year early—after 1,999 years rather than the mandatory 2,000!

The cause of this madness is laziness: it's easier to say "The Nineties" than "The Christian Era's 200th Decade." But now the lazy guys who got us into this mess are at a loss for words: what to call the new century's first two decades? OED source books offer no suggestions. But they do tell us that the same silly foofaraw raged 190 years ago as exists today. The dictionary quotes Chas Knight: "The learned had settled, after a vast deal of popular controversy, that the century had its beginning on the 1st of January, 1801, and not on the first of January, 1800."

Minden is no backwater. Besides the Sled Dog Derby, it boasts a newspaper that is one of very few in North America to be on the side of truth in the Great Decade Debate. Such candor will win neither awards nor recognition for the Minden Times. But to sponsor an event, perhaps with municipal support, to celebrate January 1, 1991 as the start of the 20th century's last decade, preparing for an even bigger bash ten years later, would not only show up those whom McKnight portrays as "of the other opinion", but attract province-wide, if not nation-wide, publicity—and may even start some people thinking.

I disagree with McKnight that we need two millennial celebrations one year apart to satisfy both sides in the argument. By the time of the new millenium in 2001, there will only be ONE side—and think of all the champagne money that will save!

Psychiatrist is dismayed at actions of 'power brokers'

Editor:

From Muskoka's sacred precincts, I pen this brief reply to your puerile response to my criticism of your newspaper's failure to publish my concerns about secret plans to launch an unprofessional adult mental health service. Your remarks are insulting, foolish and contrary to Haliburton's interests.

How could you possibly sidestep the conflict-of-interest with publisher Jack Brezina's Vice-chairmanship of the District Health Council's Steering Committee—that's holding secret hearings? How could you avoid the concerns expressed in correspondence with your District Health Council, federal and provincial members of Parliament and two Ministers of Health show you in early January?

I would like to think you were uninformed but actually I'm concerned you're little more than a patsy of Haliburton power brokers, intent on establishing a narrowly-conceived, publicly-funded health service in defiance of informal professional concern.

You have no familiarity with the issues involved and are unwilling to listen or read. You have no understanding of innovative or creative process, no awareness of the suffering experienced by those who try to improve society. I'm insulted and believe you should offer me an apology. As penance, read the first 200 pages of William Manchester's The Arms of Krupp. Alfred Krupp, inventor of the steel-battered rifled bore military cannon (that led to Prussia's destruction of the French Army at Sedan and German military supremacy for the better part of the following century), had his problems with an unseeing and unknowing Establishment.

While innovative and reformist frustration haven't affected me the same, it's very difficult to deal with the Ontario Government's pathetic renunciation of professional standards and practices in provision of mental health services. It's a variation of China's dismal experiment in anti-intellectualism otherwise known as the "Cultural Revolution". Quoting former United Church Moderator, Robert McClure, doctors, lawyers, dentists, school teachers, and professors were removed from their positions and sent to the fields to learn peasant values. Many of them committed suicide and China was forced to rebuild its professional community from scratch.

While avoiding such draconian anti-intellectualism abuse, Ontario is systematically undermining the very persons necessary to the establishment of the innovative mental health outreach services envisioned in its Graham Report.

I ask for understanding and reasoned argument rather than the silliness in which you have engaged.

I would hope your readers would not think the sarcasm in this letter is directed toward them personally. I have faithfully attended Haliburton residents for the past eight years and have a deep fondness for them. I am simply dismayed by the actions of the power brokers.

Alan S. Davidson, M.D.,
F.R.C.P. (C).

EDITOR'S NOTE: While Jack Brezina is a member of the Steering Committee, you are incorrect in assuming he is the Vice-chairman.

Searching for the new you

"Moderation in all things...to over-indulge leads to bulge."

For years, individuals have been tortured by the consequence of over-indulgence. And for years, people have been searching for an, if not easy, at least a comfortable way to overcome the consequences.

A new business in Haliburton has been designed to help individuals find and remain on that course to moderation. Tri-body Concepts, owned by Pati Ward, provides a new and interesting way to approach to challenge. "We are here to make each person feel like the special human that they are," the owner commented recently.

The business, located in the lower level of the Stedman's Mall, combines a program of body wrapping, exercise on toning tables, massage and nutrition counselling to help individuals find that special person, hidden inside of them.

The body wrapping, done under a program formulated by European Wrap International, involves wrapping portions of the body with tensor bandages soaked in a mineral solution. Pati says the solution helps to open the body's pores and flush away the toxins in the body fat. As well, the elastic wraps reduce inches, which, according to the brochures, will not return if the individual remains his or her present weight.

The body wrap program is augmented by toning tables or exercise machines. The tables provide a motor assisted exercise program which helps to tone the muscles and assist in giving the individual a feeling of well-being.

Weight loss starts in your head, Pati commented. A person must convince him or herself that weight reduction is a worthwhile and attainable goal. Once convinced and acting upon that conviction, attitude and peace of mind needed to achieve that goal will follow.

In a way, Pati provides a living endorsement for that mindset. She has seen the other side of the coin and has discovered what it takes to succeed.

Her personal story is very revealing. She was worked at a number of jobs, including stewardess with Wardair, and truck driving among others. About eight years ago she was involved in a vehicle accident in which she seriously hurt her back, requiring a 17 month hospitalization. During her stay in hospital she gained some 90 pounds. The doctors in the hospital also told her that she would be unable to walk in a comfortable manner again because of her back injury.

When she left the hospital, Pati weighed 223 pounds. She knew she had to do something to get her weight down, but her recent injury greatly reduced her activity level.

In 1986, she met her husband Darryl. She credits his love and devotion for helping her through this most difficult time. Despite her weight problem, as her weight continued to rise, "he saw and loved the real me inside," she said. They married in 1988.

From, 250 pounds to 108...weight loss must begin in your head says Pati Ward.

Her weight continued to rise, 240 pounds, 250 pounds. Pati is five foot three inches tall.

Shortly after her marriage, she was admitted to hospital for minor gastric surgery. However, following the operation she suffered a heart attack, which was aggravated by her weight condition.

As she emerged from the treatment for the heart attack she realized a drastic change was needed if she were to survive. And so she began a program which included cutting her food intake by half. It was difficult at first, however as the results started to show, the peace of mind followed. Sticking to her regimen, the pounds fell away and today she weighs 108 pounds, less that half her weight just before she experienced her heart attack.

It is this personal experience, and the lesson it has taught her, that Pati brings to her new business. She is enthusiastic, positive, and believes that everyone can find the magic key to feeling better about themselves.

Stamp Fuels end season on top of Men's league

The season came to a close last Monday in the Minden Men's Recreational Hockey League as six teams took to the ice for one last game before the start of the playoffs.

In spite of another loss for Stamp Fuels Monday, this team managed to hold onto first place, just one game ahead of Hartwick. Home Hardware finished the season in third place, while the Rockcliffe Tavern and The Times tied for fourth. Westside Jug City finished well back in last place in spite of their recent strong showings.

The round-robin playoffs begin at 7 p.m. tonight when Hartwick meets up with Stamp Fuels. The Rockcliffe faces

Minden Novices do well in tournament but lose in final

by Mel Flood

On Saturday, January 27, Minden OMHA Novices hosted a one-day tournament.

The tournament had six teams competing. The teams were from Fenelon Falls, Peterborough, Sunderland, Cannington, Bobcaygeon and Minden.

Minden's first game was against Bobcaygeon, with Minden winning the game 3 - 0. Goal scorers for Minden were Nicholas Kulas with two goals, which were both assisted by Ryan Anderson. Ryan Anderson scored the third goal assisted by Danny Vanderlip. Ryan Anderson was named MVP for Minden.

In the second game Minden played a team from Peterborough. This game was a real goaltending duel.

At the end of regulation time the teams were deadlocked at 0 - 0.

The teams proceeded to play a five-minute overtime period. In the overtime, Danny Jordan fed a pass to Ryan Anderson for the winning goal.

The tournament was based on points for a win and goals scored, so it was a must win if we were to have a shot at the championship game. Congratulations to both goaltenders, Adam Walsh for Peterborough and Shane Flood for Minden, both being named MVP for their respective teams for this game.

In the championship game we faced-off against Fenelon Falls. The boys started quickly scoring three goals in the first period. Goals going to Cameron Neville, Danny Jordan and Nicholas Kulas, with assists to Danny Jordan, Chris Kerr and Corey Casey. This gave Minden a 3 - 0 lead at the end of the first period.

In the second period Fenelon Falls scored twice. Cameron Neville scored his second goal of the game, assisted by Ryan Anderson. At the end of the second period, Minden still led 4 - 2.

Fenelon Falls scored early in the third period cutting our lead to one goal. But six seconds after Fenelon Falls scored, Ryan Anderson scored for Minden, assisted by Cameron Neville to re-establish our two-goal lead.

Fenelon Falls never gave up hope and scored a couple of soft goals against goalie Shane Flood to tie the game and got the winning goal with 1:10 remaining in the game.

Danny Jordan was named MVP for the game for Minden. Tough luck boys, but you played well and had some fun. Congratulations to Fenelon Falls.

On Tuesday, January 30, the team travelled to Sunderland to resume the play-off series. I missed this game due to work, but from all reports the boys played an excellent game. The score was 4 - 0 for Minden.

Goal scorers for Minden were Cameron Neville, Ryan Anderson, Danny Jordan and Danny Vanderlip, with assists going to Corey Casey, Clay Davis and Danny Jordan. This showed strong character by the team to come right back after a tough tournament loss.

Oshawa rink wins Valumart bonspiel

Sixteen senior men's teams from various locations met at the Minden Curling Club last Tuesday for the exciting and friendly Minden Valumart Bonspiel.

Ed Pettinger, bonspiel director, welcomed the curlers. And when the last rock was thrown, scorekeeper Tony Dymott announced the four winners of the first draw.

Taking top honours in the first draw was Oshawa rink of Fred Kitchen, Rod Wiltshire, Dave Simpson and Pat Mowbray. Harvey

Greenaway's Lindsay rink took second place in this draw while third went to Keith Harrison's Peterborough rink. Jack Townsend's rink from Bobcay-geon placed fourth.

The Haliburton rink of Ed Pickard, Lou Brown, Jim Stacey and Jim Johnston took first place in the second draw. Bill Monk's Oshawa rink was second, Bill Matheson's Peterborough rink was third, and Murray McLiesch's Lindsay rink was fourth.

Linda Easton, owner of the Minden Valumart, presented nice prime rib roasts and cash prizes to the winners of both draws. Second place teams received steaks and the remaining winners received chicken. In all, 32 prizes were awarded.

A special draw was also held for 16 prizes presented by Labatts, Beaverbrook Golf Course, Home Hardware and Gord Monk.

Billie Schuyler, assisted by Joyce Wiltshire, Hazel Maxwell, Merle Codlin, Gladys Wruth and Lil Davidson, worked throughout the day preparing and serving snacks and a hot lunch.

Muriel Harrington received the curlers draw tickets and organized team lists.

Thanks to J.O. Jackson and Howard Scott, the ice was keen and the curlers enjoyed an excellent day on the sheets.

The Fred Kitchen rink of Oshawa took home a tasty prize last week when they competed in the Valumart Bonspiel. The foursome claimed their prime rib roasts after finishing first in the first draw. Store owner Linda Easton was on hand to present the winners with the prizes. The team included, from the left, Dave Simpson, Pat Mowbray, skip Fred Kitchen, and Rod Wiltshire.

Minden wins 4-3 in exciting two hour match-up

3, the team travelled to Bobcaygeon for a tournament. In the first game Minden played Ops, with Ops beating Minden 3-0.

In the second game Minden played Bobcaygeon, which turned into another goaltending duel. The score was tied 2-2 at the end of regulation time.

The teams played a five-minute sudden-death overtime period and were still tied 2-2. In the second five-minute overtime period, each team dropped a man after each minute of play. After five minutes we were still tied at two. Each team selected three shooters for a shoot-out, with the total goals scored by the shooters deciding the game.

With each goalie ready for action and the whole arena watching, the pressure was sure on the goalies. In the shoot-out Minden scored twice on goals by Ryan Anderson and Danny Jordan. Minden goalie Shane Flood allowed only one goal, giving Minden a 4-3 win.

This game took almost two hours to play and provided the most excitement of the day. The win allowed us to proceed to the championship game of the consolation round against a team from East Gwillimbury.

This was a good hockey team and the boys could not get untracked against them. We were defeated 7-1. Ryan Anderson scored the lone goal for Minden. Danny Jordan was named the MVP for the game.

We now turn our attention back to the play-offs.

Insects are a success story

Reflections

by Dr. David Suzuki

Cockroaches fill most people with revulsion. But last October, I met a scientist who is an ardent admirer of these evolutionary survivors.

He is Tom Eisner, a professor of chemical ecology at Cornell University and I interviewed him at the Archibald Biological Station in the centre of Florida, about 200 kilometres southeast of Tampa.

He concentrates on insects and is happy to be called a "bug expert".

Eisner is a scientist in the best sense of the word, enthralled by his subject and anxious to share his sense of wonder and amazement.

Florida's coastal beaches are spectacular, while the swamps are alive with exotic fish, birds and animals.

But the climate and the beauty of the state are a magnet for people and development—swamps have been drained, rivers rerouted, farms sprayed and a string of condos built right around the state.

In the heart of what seems like a giant development project, Archibald Station is a 10,000-acre oasis of wilderness where one gets an intimation of what Florida must once have been—teeming with plant, bird and insect life.

Early one morning, I was astonished to see trees and shrubs hidden beneath a drapery of spectacular spider webs made visible by a glistening coat of dew.

Those spiders betray the incredible abundance of insect life in the area.

Eisner has been interested in insects all his life. He was born in Berlin in 1929 and, as a Jew, fled with his parents to Spain and then Uruguay.

There on the edge of the Amazon rainforest, the most abundant animals were insects and they became his lifelong obsession.

Tom has all of the credentials of a top scientist—publications, awards and popular articles on him and his work.

He has a combination of tenacity, curiosity, patience and careful observation.

But it is his passion to share the secrets of his subjects that sets him apart.

He loves "bugs" and can't understand why people seem repelled by such fascinating creatures.

Eisner reminds us that 300 million years ago, long before there were our primate ancestors or even dinosaurs, insects flourished and dominated the land.

Today, they make up more than 85 per cent of all animal species and for every person alive today, there are at least 200 million insects.

By the criteria of staying power, numbers and variety, insects are the success story in evolution.

Long after we are gone, they will still be plentiful.

Insects, Eisner argues convincingly, are a key group on earth: Without them, life as we know it would not be possible.

They are a critical food source for numerous

Ideal weather made tournament a 16 team success

Good weather played a major part in the success of this year's Snow-Pitch tournament, held during the Minden Kinsmen Winter Carnival.

More than 200 people, on 16 teams, participated in the popular event and the weather co-operated despite the threat of a thaw.

"I think this tournament was a big success and I'm looking forward to next year's," said tournament organizer Kevin Smith. He says the Carnival Snow-Pitch tournament will be back bigger and better a year from now.

With pouring rain on the Thursday prior to the tournament, things weren't looking good. However a good freeze on Friday created solid field conditions in time for the tournament to begin that night under the lights.

The first game on Friday night featured Newfer Burk's team winning 10-6 against Gary Smith's team as a light dusting of snow fell over the field. The second game saw Joel Cox's team lose to Dwayne Warburton's team. The final game of the evening had Mike Carpenter's team accepting a 13-7 loss from Craig Smith's team.

Play resumed Saturday morning with the sun beaming down. John Fedeski's team edged Mark Thompson's in the opener. In the next game, Kevin Smith's team defeated Louis Reynold's team at the lower diamond, while at the school the MNR lost 17-5 to Jason Stamp's team.

At 11:30 a.m., Paul Walker's team had little trouble with the Watson's. Rounding out the 16-team schedule, Oshawa defeated Dwayne Lennie's team in a close battle.

In the second round at the school, Gary Smith's team had no trouble with Dwayne Warburton's team, winning 30-8. The same was true with the game going on at the lower diamond with Newfer Burk's team defeating Joel Cox. This eliminated Cox's team and advanced Burk's team to the semi-finals.

The next game at the school, Mike Carpenter's team knocked out John Fedeski's team, advancing to the B semi-finals.

At 1:15 p.m., Craig Smith's team defeated Mark Thompson's team in the closest game of the tournament with an 8-7 score.

At 2:30 p.m., Louis Reynold's team advanced to the B semi-finals by eliminating the MNR.

At 3:45, Kevin Smith's team eliminated Jason Stamp's team in an exciting, close game. They won 10-9 to advance to the A semi-finals.

At 6:15 p.m., Paul Walker's team was eliminated 7-4 in a close battle with the Oshawa Chiefs. Although Walker's team led 3-2 at one point in the game, Oshawa fought back for the win in the last game of the night with the rain falling again.

The weather cleared up again by Sunday morning but the lower diamond was too icy to play on, so all the games were moved to the school.

In the B semi-finals, Mike Carpenter's team eliminated Gary Smith's team 13-5 with Craig Burke picking up the MVP award, a Coors Light hat. The win advanced Carpenter's team to the B finals.

On the A side, Craig Smith's team staged the biggest upset of the tournament by downing Newfer Burk's team 15-6. This advanced Smith's team to the A championships. Donelda Smith was named the MVP in this game and won a dinner for two at N.J.'s

At noon, Kevin Smith watched his team build a 6-2 lead only to have Oshawa battle back for the 9-6 win. Paul Kearnon was the MVP, winning a Northland Sales sweatshirt.

The B championship was a showdown between Mike Carpenter and Louis Reynolds, with Carpenter's team coming out on the better side of the scoreboard. The winners received Coors Light gym bags, the RAL Auto Body trophy and a $50 cash prize. Floyd Henry was named the MVP and won a Northland Sales sweatshirt. Reynold's team all received Coors Light Slo-Pitch shirts.

The A championship pitted Oshawa against Craig Smith's team with Oshawa coming out on top of 15-9 score to take the overall title. The MVP was Jason Gaudet, winning a Silk Tassel bag, donated by the Dominion Hotel.

Oshawa won the $70 cash prize, Coors Light gym bags and the championship trophy donated by RAL Auto Body.

Smith's team won Coors Light shirts and hats.

Little known about insects

species of birds, fish and mammals, they pollinate flowering plants, they are effective agents of biological control.

"I've spent all of my life studying insects," Eisner says, "yet I only know about six or seven species in any detail" — and he is a world expert!

He stresses how little we know and how much a tragedy it is to destroy forests whose communities of organisms we haven't studied or even discovered.

Eisner is scornful of the massive use of chemical pesticides has increased over 800 per cent, yet crop loss to insects has increased to 13 per cent from seven. (Atlantic Monthly, Nov. '89, p. 59).

Eisner is full of fascinating insights into how insects communicate, feed and reproduce.

But it is the way these small animals have evolved to protect themselves in a world of potential predators decorating themselves to become invisible.

Others mimic creatures that sting or taste bad.

And the bombardier beetle uses chemical warfare, shooting a hot, noxious spray from a special reaction chamber.

Like the potential cornucopia of drugs and foods to be reaped from exotic plants, insects could be a motherlode of useful chemicals—if they can be saved from extinction and studied carefully.

Thus for example, the venoms of some spiders (close relatives of insects) contain compounds which inhibit the action of glutamate, a molecule involved in the transmission of nerve impulses.

That discovery led to tests of spider venom on people with brain defects resulting from an excess of glutamate.

So the next time you're tempted to spray a cockroach or stomp on an insect, think of Tom Eisner and his way of looking at them as an evolutionary success story.

Tri-County Novice B's are trying to shake losing streak

by Debbie Casey

The Tri-County Novice B's have been on a losing streak. In the last few weeks they have played four games and were defeated in every one, starting with Fenelon at 5-1; Manvers 8-0; Millbrook 10-1; and Little Britain 5-2.

In answer to the last game they travelled to Little Britain on January 26. This time Little Britain wasn't so lucky, and we came away with a 2-2 tie. It was back-and-forth hockey and Minden had the lead until seconds before the end of the game. Minden goals were scored by Adam Durkin and Steve Ecclestone.

On Sunday, January 28, the Novice B's co-hosted a tournament with the Novice C's. Their first game was an experience with an unknown team, Gravenhurst. They played hard, but lost 1-0. Next, they came up against Haliburton. They managed to keep them at bay for a good portion of the game, but Haliburton came back to defeat them 6-3. With the system we were using, we once again came up against Gravenhurst for the consolation. This time Gravenhurst was out to win and that's just what they did. They came out on top of a 4-2 score. Minden's Adam Durkin scored both goals for Minden.

Each game a player was chosen by the opposite team to be "Most Valuable Player". In the first game it went to Brock Ladurantaye, second game, Steve Ecclestone, and the final game, Shawn Casey. Congratulations boys!

February 3 and 4 they participated in a Novice-Pee Wee tournament in Haliburton. They started off bright and early Saturday morning with an 8 a.m. game against Wilberforce. Minden jumped into the lead with two quick goals from B.J. Redner. Adam Durkin sneaked in a third one. Wilberforce didn't quit and kept plugging away until by the middle of the third period they stood tied.

Just as the buzzer sounded to end the game,

Steve Ecclestone fired another one in. Too bad, too late, so off they went into overtime.

With nerves on edge, breath held, they finished their first five-minute overtime period. On to the next overtime. It was back and forth until minutes before the end of the second overtime when Wilberforce sneaked one past goalie Brock Ladurantaye.

Our second game was that night at 6 p.m. This time we met Port Perry. We had a change of strategy this game and tried Mitch Johnson as goalie and gave Brock a break from all the pressure.

Less than a minute into the game, Port Perry slipped one in. Not to be outdone, B.J. Redner intercepted a pass from Colin MacKenzie and drove it home. Minutes later, Steve Ecclestone picked up a pass from Adam Durkin and put us in the lead. Late in the third period, Port Perry got through our defences and tied it up. Period four went back and forth with tension building, then onto period five. At the 4:02 mark, Ecclestone passed it up to Durkin who put it between the pipes and ended the game 3-2.

Our third game was scheduled for 3 p.m. Sunday. Pre-game reports told us it would be another tight one and parents hoped we would be spared by another overtime game and we were. At the 5:36 mark of the first period, Ecclestone grabbed control of the puck, skated down and shot it between the goalies legs. This proved to be the last goal of the game and Minden came out on top of a 1-0 game.

These three games gave us a total of 13 1/2 points, but not enough to qualify for the Championship. It was a very well organized tournament and we thank Haliburton for inviting us. We certainly had plenty of thrilling moments.

Our Most Valuable Player awards for the three games were Brock Ladurantaye, Steve Ecclestone and Adam Durkin.

Minden Novices earn consolation trophy in a four team tournament by beating Ops

by Janet Horsely

On Sunday, January 28, the Minden Tri-County Novices hosted Bobcaygeon, Port Carling and Ops in a hockey tournament and Minden won the consolation championship.

Minden's first game was at 8 a.m. against Bobcaygeon. Both teams seemed to be in their beds sleeping throughout the first two periods. But by the third period they both were batting it out.

Bobcaygeon was ahead 2-0, but Minden was trying their best near the end of the period, when Jason Horsley scored the only goal of the game for Minden.

The MVP award went to Jason Horsley.

Our next game was at 2 p.m. with Port Carling. Both teams played well. It was a joy to watch these two teams play. The puck moved from one end of the ice to the other all through the three periods of play. Each team tried as hard as the other to make a goal. The game ended with a score of 2-1 for Port Carling.

Minden's goal was scored by Shane Walker, assisted by Billy Fountain. The MVP award went to Paul Daniels.

The next game for Minden was at 4:30 p.m. for the consolation prize against Ops.

Both teams played well and Minden had no problems in this game. The forwards and defencemen played where they are supposed to, ending in a 5-2 win for Minden.

Minden goals came from Jason Horsley, unassisted; Josh Shaw, assisted by Shane Walker; Anthony Weerdenberg, assisted by Gary Kernohan; Shane Walker, assisted by Josh Shaw and Anthony Weerdenberg; and Bary Kernohan assisted by Ryan White.

The MVP award went to Josh Shaw.

To end the day for this Novice C tournament, Port Carling and Bobcaygeon battled it out for the championship.

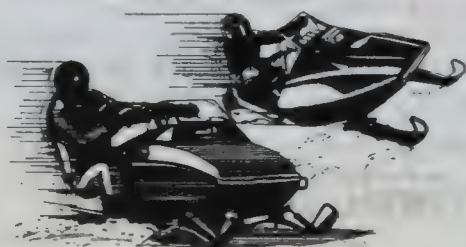

The game was filled with fast, end-to-end action from both teams. The teams seemed to be very well matched as it was just as hard for either team to score a goal.

The first period was 1-0 for Bobcaygeon. In the second period, Port Carling caught up, making it 2-2 at the end of the period. Bobcaygeon pulled into the lead in the final frame to win 3-2.

The Minden Novices would like to thank all the teams for coming and hope they had as much fun as we did. We would also like to thank Donald Finn for the donation of signed hockey sticks that were raffled at the end of the games and given to one lucky player.

Birthdays for the month of February at the Hyland Crest are Ruby Lewis, February 11, Marjorie Shuyler, February 11, and Stella Stinson, February 16. Good wishes to all.

Read a very interesting article 'Plants for the Space Age' as researched by NASA and also heard it discussed on radio CFRB. NASA reports indicate that common houseplants can significantly reduce the level of indoor pollutants which can cause symptoms ranging from respiratory irritation and dizziness, to nausea. Spider plants performed best in cleansing the air of formaldehyde, a chemical used in the manufacture of plywood, particle board, carpets, drapes, fabric, furniture, fibreboard and some insulation. Formaldehyde emits toxic gas as it evaporates at room temperature. Other plants which are listed are Chinese evergreen, the peace lily and golden pothos. Eight to 15 plants can significantly improve air quality in the average home. (Something to think about as our plants give us pleasure as well as helping to clear the air in our homes.)

So glad to report that Sherry Gilbert is making a speedy recovery from her surgery and will soon be back at her desk at the Commerce.

Florence Robinson had a visit from Phyllis McDuff from Gooderham and had a lovely lunch out. Also her nephew and his wife, Glenn and Sheri Cockburn from Woodville and they enjoyed lunch out.

It is not often that sports results are reported in this column but it is felt that this is an exception. The Ontario Curling Association Seniors Tankard was held in Guelph on February 4, 5, and 6 with 48 rinks participating from Ontario. Our Minden team reached the playoffs and were one of the eight winners. Our team was Milt Endicott, Gil Scott, Bill Milford and Stan Hill. Three cheers and a tiger for you all!

Sincere sympathy is extended to the family and friends of Mr. Robert Hollobon, Mr. Lorne Sawyer, Mr. Albert Hart of Hall's Lake, and Mr. Esley Matthews of Wilberforce.

Minden Legion Branch 636 Euchre Winners, February 1: Lone hands, lady - Mae Bradbury, lone hands, man - Jack Chilton, high lady score - Martha Mansfield, high man score - Willard Bridgman, low lady score - Dorothy McElwain, and low man score - Don Nye.

Winners at St. Paul's Church card party Thursday were: most lone hands -

Verna McDonald, high & low lady - Jeanne Sears and Mary Cassidy, and Jack Weekes and Irene Fuhr as high and low man.

Club 35 Euchre, February 5 was well attended, and our winners were: 50-50 - Cliff Woolner, most lone hands - Ellen Klok, high lady - Olive Daniels, high man - Jim Bradbury, others - Fran Clark, Jim Allen, and Doreen Lewis.

Club 35 Bridge, February 6 winners were: 1st - Thelda Weston, 2nd - John Klok, 3rd - June Branning. Come out and enjoy an afternoon of bridge again Tuesday, February 13. All welcome.

Alzheimer Society of Peterborough & Victoria monthly meeting. DATE: February 21, 1990 at 7:30 p.m. PLACE: Marycrest Auditorium, 220 St. Lukes Street, Peterborough.

SPEAKER: Mrs. Madeline Honeyman, Past President of the Alzheimer Society of Ottawa Carleton. Everyone welcome. Refreshments following.

Lionesses help out with serving afternoon tea

Senior League

by Winifred Barnum

Hello! Sr. League friends, this is the start of another week Thursday afternoon was tea party time. The ladies of Ingoldsby United Church were scheduled to bring and serve the tea, but so many were sick or working, they prepared lunch and the Minden Lioness came and served it for them. We wish to sincerely thank the Ingoldsby Ladies for preparing the lunch and the Lioness' for serving it so nicely.

Friday was happy hour in the auditorium. Those present than Mary Guillemain and Mel Robertson for serving them so well. The entertainment was supplied by Lloyd Madill and Don White with guitar and violin music and Doris at the piano. Thank you Lloyd, Don and Doris. The music was greatly appreciated. Linda and Doris supervised the happy hour very well.

Thursday night was bingo night and dough Holmes called the games with good order and very clear. We do thank him very much.

Saturday May Horsley had Lynn and David for dinner in the tuck shop and Lee stopped to see her later.

Charlotte and Lorne Fry had their son to visit them Saturday.

Ruby Lewis had her daughter Doris to see her Sunday evening.

The residents of Hyland Crest would like to thank Hilde Kieckhoefer for taping programs at home and showing them to us usually after Chapel Service. She has shown us Lawrence Welk programs the last two Sundays. She also helps the residents to the large lounge to see them. Thank you very much for your thoughtfulness.

Olive Hamilton dropped in to visit Monday morning, she feels she has finally started to improve.

Evelyn Coleman came Monday at 1 o'clock for bible study continuing with women of the bible. We studied Lot's wife and Dinah, Leah's daughter.

Since it was the first Monday of the month we held Residents Council in the craft room. We had a very good attendance. Several items were discussed pertaining to our welfare at Hyland Crest.

Tuesday night Everett Fairey and daughter Terri Lynn were here to entertain us with singing and guitar music. The residents thank them very much.

Tuesday we admitted a new resident, Mrs. Elfriede Brandt. Welcome to Hyland

Crest and hope you will be happy here.

We are glad to have Carrie Drysdale out and about again.

Monday night Ruth and Allan Rice showed films in the auditorium. Everyone really enjoyed them. They were Part 1 & 2 of "The Horse With the Flying Tail" and "The Riverman". Thank you Ruth and Allan for showing them to us.

The residents have a telephone in the hall near the main office that they can use free of charge for local calls and also one in the nurses area. They have more privacy when talking and does not disturb the office and nursing staff. The number to call is 286-3713.

Wednesday night Rev. Murray came and held a service in the main lounge.

Home support needs volunteers

Somewhere in the back of your mind, you know there are people in Haliburton County who need help. They need a warm caring human being like you to help them.

If you have time to spare, time to share, whether a day, a week, or a few hours a month, it will make a big difference.

Volunteerism is not only an opportunity for you to help your neighbour, but it is an excellent way to find out more about your community, to meet new people and new ideas, give support to others, encourage personal growth and take part in social and political change.

Haliburton County Home Support Services has a need for volunteers in several of our different programs. For more information about our volunteer opportunities, please contact Norma Parnell, Volunteer Co-Ordinator at 457-2941, Monday to Friday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Illiteracy a problem in Canada

Report From Ottawa

by Bill Scott, M.P.

Canada has a problem. According to a 1987 report commissioned by Southam News, 24 per cent of Canadians cannot read or write or manipulate numbers well enough to meet the literacy demands of modern society.

But the prevailing image of the average functional illiterate is deceiving; illiteracy is common among intelligent, caring and productive Canadians, not simply among people with diminished ability or with a history of interrupted education.

And illiteracy is not just an educational issue, although it is to education that we must finally turn for solutions to the problem. The fact that so many Canadians cannot read or write properly constitutes a grave social malady.

Functional illiterates, who are as often as not just as intelligent as their literate peers, face poor employment prospects. A recent survey shows that literate Canadians are twice as likely to remain employed in the long term as illiterate Canadians. This causes predictable economic problems; but, most distressing, illiteracy can lead to emotional losses and social imbalance.

Part of the solution to the illiteracy problem lies in educating all Canadians. Our country's active participation in the United Nations' International Literacy

Year will contribute greatly to this process.

The Government of Canada has very clear goals for International Literacy Year. In September 1988, the Prime Minister announced a $110 million, five-year program to help fight illiteracy. The two-pronged program will first attempt to prevent illiteracy by encouraging young people to develop their reading and writing skills, and, second, help those who have already suffered reading or writing setbacks.

Hi Kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. Have fun!

"WHERE THE ACTION IS"

Government
funds

Because the effects of illiteracy affect society as a whole, the government has chosen to deliver literacy programs through partnerships. The National Literacy Secretariat in the Department of Multiculturalism and Citizenship was created to build effective working relationships between all levels of government, business, labour and volunteer groups.

As International Literacy Year progresses, these partnerships will develop, extending aid and assistance to all who are in need of help. This aid will come in the form of public awareness campaigns, information-sharing programs, access and outreach programs for literacy training, enhanced distribution of learning and a higher level of research into the illiteracy phenomenon.

The broad approach reflects the problem; only through a comprehensive and generous array of initiatives will we be able to root out and eliminate for good illiteracy in Canada. It will be a tough fight, but one which the PC government is willing and ready to undertake.

Reminder for seniors
You must re-apply each year for the Guaranteed Income Supplement. The application form you received from Health and Welfare in January must be returned before March 15 to make sure your April cheque is not delayed.

Residents plan outdoor activities for spring

Greetings from Staunworth Terrace. January has been a very good month for our indoor activities and to get acquainted while attending resident meetings. We have plans for outside affairs when warmer weather arrives.

We were saddened by the death of Cliff Skelding in January. He will be surely missed by family and friends. It is nice to live near the Community Centre, always something worth watching. February 2 was our Pot Luck supper and birthday party with a great cake. There was a wonderful spread of home-cooked items and a very good time for all.

Several are away now with some just going south. All good wishes to those in hospital at this time.

Birthday for February are Herbert Hancock, Lilian

Stevenson, Mary Stevenson and Ruby Schmidt with best wishes to all.

The regular games go on; Euchres on Monday nights at 7 and Cribbage Friday afternoons at 1:30 and we welcome visitors to these. Residents here are getting to know each other and making new friends. What a great place to be.

A good IDEA

by Dave Woodall
Individuals Deserving Easier Access

I have little news to begin the last decade of the 20th Century. 1989 ended with an extremely cold spell resulting in numerous temporary illnesses, ill-nature, ill-humour, ill-will, etc. etc. and those that are not laid low spent a lot of their time attending to those who were; baking muffins and tarts, rolls of joy spread with love and cheer, building health and strength to combat the forthcoming winds and rain, blizzards and tempest March has in store.

So we've had an assortment of colds and coughs but IDEA is just as healthy as it ever was and that's the important thing. Its potential is limited only by our imagination, because it is us. Now it is time for each individual to seriously concentrate on what is expected to be achieved through this vehicle and how best to direct it to that goal. In the meantime, keep on contacting one another by telephone or visits whenever you have time and the means. Many of us become shut-ins as winter progresses and a word of cheer hurries the approach of Spring.

ITEM: The wheel chair bus has been ordered and is being outfitted in Cambridge, with a tentative delivery date for late in March.

ITEM: The Haliburton County Information Centre has trained personnel to help with problems pertaining to social services, health, government assistance in housing and financial difficulties. A telephone call to Mrs. Hawman at 457-2733 could solve a problem posthast. I myself am thinking along the lines of second-hand jinrikisha!

Inflation is when after 30 years a person is worth seven times as much to stay at home as they were worth to come to work in the first place.

May the sun shine on your valentine.

Did you know?

With the ever growing need to protect the environment, the Ontario Recycling Information Service, a service of the Recycling Council of Ontario has provided the centre with the following list of safe substitutes for some household toxics we may be using at the present time. The alternate product can usually be purchased at the grocery store.

Aerosol Sprays: Use pump-type sprays whenever possible to replace aerosols (e.g. hair sprays). Use fresh flowers or sachets of dried petals mixed with spices instead of room sprays.

Ant Control: Sprinkle cream of tartar in front of the ant's path. Ants will not cross over. (Cream of tartar is a substance used in baking).

Bug Sprays: Place screens on windows and doors. Brewers yeast tablets taken daily give the skin a scent that mosquitos seem to avoid.

Chemical Fertilizers: Compost.

Copper Cleaner: Pour vinegar and salt over copper and rub.

Deodorize/Air Fresheners: Open windows or use exhaust fans as a natural air freshener. A dish of hot vinegar can get rid of fish odours. Baking soda placed in the refrigerator reduces odour. Fresh cut flowers or dried flower petals and spices can add a nice scent to a room. You can also boil potpourri or cinnamon and cloves in water to produce a nice scent.

Detergents: Laundry and Dishwashing: Replace detergents with soaps that are relatively "non-toxic" and biodegradable. (To wash out residue from detergents, prewash in washing soda).

Drain Openers: Pour boiling water down the drain. Do this every week for preventive maintenance. Use a plumber's helper (plunger) or a plumber's snake.

Flea Repellant: Place eucalyptus seed and leaves round the area where the animal sleeps.

Floor Cleaner: Use washing soda and water.

Furniture Polish: Use a soft cloth and mayonnaise or mix 1 part lemon juice and 2 parts vegetable oil.

Glass and Window Cleaner: Use cornstarch and water or mix one half cup vinegar and one quart water and wipe with newspaper. Use lemon juice and dry with a soft cloth.

Oven Cleaners: Mix 3

tbsp. of washing soda with one quart of warm water. Place liners in oven to catch drips during baking. Sprinkle salt on spills when they are warm and then scrub. Rub spills gently with steel wool.

Paint: Water based paints are less toxic than metal-based. After using them, no solvent is necessary for "clean up".

Rat Poison: Put a screen over drains. Use mechanical - snap mouse traps.

Scouring Powder: Dip a damp cloth in baking soda and rub. Use steel wool.

Snails/Slug Bait: Place a shallow pan with beer in the infested area. Overturn claypots. The snails will take shelter in them during the sunny days and they can be collected and removed.

For further information or if you require assistance, contact your nearest information centre. In Haliburton, the centre is located in the Drag River Municipal Building, Maple Ave., open Monday to Friday 10 a.m. - 4 p.m. or call 457-2733.

For the convenience of residents of Minden and surrounding areas, the centre located in the Municipal Building, Minden, is open Monday and Tuesday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. or call 286-4100. If you live outside the toll-free area, please call collect.

NOTICE OF FISH STOCKING ON SELECTED WATERBODIES WITHIN MINDEN DISTRICT

The Ministry of Natural Resources, Minden District is considering stocking the following waterbodies with the indicated fish species:

Lake	Township	Proposed Fish Species
		1st Priority	2nd Priority
Concession	Galway	Lake Trout	Splake
South Anson	Anson	Lake Trout	Splake
Ketch	Hindon	Brook Trout	Splake
Bat	Guilford	Splake
Cinder	Hindon	Splake
Copper	Lutterworth	Splake
Poker	Hindon	Splake	Largemouth Bass
Smudge	Digby	Splake
West Victoria	Digby	Splake
Victoria	Digby	Rainbow Trout	Largemouth Bass
Sprat	Hindon	Rainbow Trout
Charles	Monmouth	Largemouth Bass
Nogies	Galway	Largemouth Bass

The fish species to be stocked in the candidate lakes are listed as 1st Priority and 2nd Priority. Since there appears to be suitable habitat (oxygen and temperature) for the 1st Priority species, those species will be stocked initially and later assessed as to the success of the plantings. The 2nd Priority species provides an alternative in the event that the 1st Priority species fails to become established and provide a viable fishery.

This is the first time these species have been stocked in these particular waterbodies. This stocking effort is being made in order to create new artificial and new self-sustaining fisheries, thereby providing additional angling opportunities for lake trout, brook trout, splake, rainbow trout and largemouth bass.

This project is being planned and implemented under this Ministry's Approved Class Environmental Assessment for Fish Stocking in New Waters.

You are invited to direct any questions or concerns regarding this proposal to the District Manager, Minden District by February 23, 1990. The opportunity to request an individual assessment is available, if necessary.

Final notice of the project will be issued only to those who reply to this notice and to those directly affected.

MEMORIAM

HOWE, Vera. In loving memory of my dear wife who passed away February 15, 1988.

I think of you in silence
I often speak your name,
But all I have are memories
And a picture in a frame.
It broke my heart to lose you,
But you didn't go alone
For part of me went with you,
The day God called you home.

Sadly missed and always loved — Your husband Henry.

HOWE, Vera. In loving memory of our dear mother, grandmother, and great-grandmother who left us February 15, 1988.

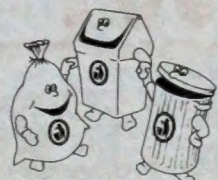

We wander by your graveside
Place flowers with love and care,
But no one know the heart ache
When we turn and leave you there.
They say that time heals everything,
We know that isn't so,
Because it hurts as much today,
As it did two years ago.

Lovingly remembered by your family.
